Voice and the Victorian Storyteller Ivan Kreilkamp, 2005-11-03 The nineteenth century novel has always been regarded as a literary form pre-eminently occupied with the written word but Ivan Kreilkamp shows it was deeply marked by and engaged with vocal performances and the preservation and representation of speech He offers a detailed account of the many ways Victorian literature and culture represented the human voice from political speeches governesses tales shorthand manuals and staged authorial performances in the early and mid century to mechanically reproducible voice at the end of the century Through readings of Charlotte Brontë Browning Carlyle Conrad Dickens Disraeli and Gaskell Kreilkamp re-evaluates critical assumptions about the cultural meanings of storytelling and shows that the figure of the oral storyteller rather than disappearing among readers preference for printed texts persisted as a character and a function within the novel This 2005 study will change the way readers consider the Victorian novel and its many ways of telling stories
