Opening Markets for Trade in Services Juan A. Marchetti, Martin

Roy, 2009-02-02 Trade in services is an increasingly important part of global trade and as such figures prominently in multilateral regional and bilateral trade negotiations In this volume of essays academics negotiators and experts from various international organizations explore the achievements of such negotiations together with the challenges and opportunities which arise and the motivations that come into play in such negotiations The contributions highlight issues in important services sectors such as distribution energy finance telecommunications air transport and the postal and audiovisual sectors as well as areas such as cross border trade and government procurement Case studies look into the experiences of specific countries The focus on sector analysis and country experiences sheds light on the state of services liberalization and the regulation of international trade in services at the beginning of the twenty first century making this an indispensable guide to ongoing and future international negotiations on this topic

Issues in US-EC Trade Relations Robert E. Baldwin, Carl B. Hamilton, André Sapir, 2009-02-15 A viable system of international trade requires the active support of both the United States and the European Community the world's largest trading partners and consequently the primary forces shaping the post World War II international trading regime In recent years however a series of disagreements have threatened the consensus supporting that regime Differences have arisen over the relation of trade policy to balance of trade deficits the terms of and actual compliance with the current General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and the proper agenda and procedures to be adopted in future multilateral trade negotiations These differences if left unresolved will further weaken an already strained system Issues in US EC Trade Relations presents the results of a conference organized by the NBER and the Centre for European Policy Studies In it North American and European trade specialists offer theoretical empirical and historical analyses of some of the major issues on which American and Community officials disagree and also formulate realistic policies for settling present disputes Contributors consider such topics as the legal aspects of trade between the two regions agricultural policy different ways the United States and members of the European Community use embargoes to attempt to induce foreign countries to change particular political actions the growing trend toward protectionism and responses to this policy international trade in services and trade policy in oligopolistic environments In most cases each general subject is approached from both an American and a European perspective

Reviving Growth in India Pradeep Agrawal, 2015-03-26 This book brings together the latest research findings from leading economists from India and abroad on ways to revive and sustain higher growth rates in India Divided into five parts the first part empirically examines the various factors that affect poverty and shows that growth is crucial to poverty reduction The second part investigates the factors responsible for sustaining industrial growth including skill formation and innovation Part III analyses the critical role of monetary policy and shows that it is not very effective in the presence of commodity price shocks and supply constraints It explains why RBI could not effectively control inflation and why the government must play a crucial supporting role in controlling inflation Part IV then analyses various supply constraints to growth including agriculture energy security social and physical infrastructure and discusses how to deal with them effectively Part V analyses the labour and financial market policies

International Trade and Developing Countries Amrita Narlikar, 2004-03-01 A keen analysis of how and why countries bargain together in groups in world affairs and why such coalitions are crucial to individual developing nations It also reveals the effects these negotiating blocs are having on world affairs Successful coalition building has proven to be a difficult and expensive process Allies are often not obvious and need to be carefully identified Large numbers do not necessarily entail a proportionate increase in influence And the weak have the choice of teaming up against or jumping on the bandwagon with the strong Even after it has been organised collective action entails costs of many kinds This book investigates the relevance and workability of coalitions as instruments of bargaining power for the weak More specifically this analyzes the coalition strategies of developing countries at the inter state level particularly in the context of international trade Given the nature of this enquiry this new study uses theoretical and empirical methods to complement each other The theoretical approach draws from a plethora of writings formal theories of clubs and coalitions theories of domestic political economy and theories of international relations The empirical analysis of comparable coalitions becomes necessary to assist in this theorising so the greater part of the book focuses mainly though not exclusively on coalitions involving developing countries on the issue area of trade in services Through the case studies of the Uruguay Round and an analytical overview of more recent coalitions this text fills an important gap in the literature of international political economy and international relations where most GATT WTO based coalitions have eluded record This book will be of great interest to all students of international relations politics and globalization

Screening Foreign Direct Investment in the EU Jens Velten, 2022-07-19 Foreign Direct Investment FDI from third countries a desirable form of investment to boost the EU s economy or a threat to important EU and Member State interests that must be mitigated via FDI screening mechanisms FDI screening is a complex controversial and highly topical subject at the intersection of law politics and economics This book analyzes the political rationale behind FDI screening in the EU reveals the legal limitations of current FDI screening mechanisms based on security and public order and identifies legislative options for broader screening mechanisms in accordance with EU and international economic law In particular the book identifies the four main concerns in the EU regarding FDI from third countries distortive competition effects the lack of reciprocity on FDI treatment between the EU and the investor s home country objectives of the investor or their home country that may be detrimental to EU interests and safety of private information On this basis the book analyzes the Screening Regulation Regulation EU 2019 452 and its newly introduced screening ground security or public order and asks whether this and other similar screening grounds based on the notions of security public order and public policy can address these concerns with regard to foreign investors Based on an analysis of WTO law and EU primary law it argues that they cannot Thus the question arises Do the EU and Member States have the flexibility to adopt broader FDI screening mechanisms To answer this question the book examines the freedoms of capital movement and establishment in EU primary law as well as various sources of international economic law such as first and foremost the WTO s General Agreement on Trade in Services but also other bi and plurilateral trade and investment treaties including the EU China Comprehensive

Agreement on Investment In closing the book identifies various legislative options for broader FDI screening mechanisms and their shortcomings
