Reconstructing Human-Landscape Interactions - Volume 1 Brett T. McLaurin, Aileen C. Elliott, Nalini Torres, 2012-01-03 The Holocene is unique when compared to earlier geological time in that humans begin to alter and manipulate the natural environment to their own needs Domestication of crops and animals and the resultant intensification of agriculture lead to profound changes in the impact humans have on the environment Conversely as human populations began to increase geologic and climatic factors begin to have a greater impact on civilizations To understand and reconstruct the complex interplay between humans and the environment over the past ten thousand years requires examination of multiple differing but interconnected aspects of the environment and involves geomorphology paleoecology geoarchaeology and paleoclimatology These Springer Briefs volumes examine the dynamic interplay between humans and the natural environment as reconstructed by the many and varied sub fields of the Earth Sciences Human-Environment Interactions Eduardo S. Brondízio, Emilio F. Moran, 2012-11-15 Drawing on research from eleven countries across four continents the 16 chapters in the volume bring perspectives from various specialties in anthropology and human ecology institutional analysis historical and political ecology geography archaeology and land change sciences The four sections of the volume reflect complementary approaches to HEI health and adaptation approaches land change and landscape management approaches institutional and political ecology approaches and historical and archaeological approaches
