

Human Blood Cell Typing

What did you learn?

What?

Antigen-antibody reactions in human transfusions are the basis used to select compatible human blood groups, where compatibility is the ability to transfuse blood successfully to the body, or vice versa, to prevent damage and death. All patients for transfusion, blood and blood cells, must be typed to determine compatibility for blood transfusion before transfusion. In this lab, we have used what we have learned before to be transfused.

Activity 1 – Read Blood Cells and Antibodies

	Person with Blood Type A	Person with Blood Type B	Person with Blood Type AB	Person with Blood Type O
Cell with attached antigen
Antibody produced
Cells to the person's own blood transfused
Cells to the person's own blood not transfused

1. Blood is not typed, because compatibility is determined by the presence/absence of antigens and antibodies on the red blood cells.

a. According to Activity 1, (person's) blood type can be used to the transfusion of blood.

Blood Antigens:

a. What does a person's blood type determine about their blood?

Antibodies:

a. What does a person's blood type determine about their blood?

Transfusion and Compatibility: If antigens are the surface of a cell, then a cell with a different antigen is not compatible. If antibodies are the surface of a cell, then a cell with a different antigen is not compatible.
