

CHECKS AND BALANCES WORKSHEET

Checks and balances is a political principle which describes how the branches of government work with each other. The Constitution of the United States established the three branches of the United States government. These branches are the executive, legislative and judicial. The President is the head of the executive branch, which enforces the laws. Congress, made up of the Senate and House of Representatives, is the head of the legislative branch which makes the laws. The judicial branch, which interprets the laws, is made up of the Supreme Court and the federal courts.

The Principle of the Separation of Powers Zoltán Balázs, 2016-12-13 The separation of powers is one of the most cherished principles of constitutional government in the Western tradition Despite its prestigious status however it has always been controversial It has been attacked for being inadequate to account for institutional realities for being inapplicable to parliamentary systems for lacking a convincing normative grounding and even for being harmful inasmuch as it hampers both the immediate enforcement of popular will and efficient political leadership Current political crises all over the world especially the rise of populist democracies and authoritarian regimes however make the principle worth a closer more positive examination This book takes stock of the criticisms of the principle of separation of powers and attempts to offer a new normative account of it It argues that the separation of powers cannot be restricted to governmental institutions agencies and decision making procedures Rather it must be derived from the very basics of government from the very notions of political order and articulated government and from the distinct though related concepts of social and governmental power and of authority Once these distinctions are made institutional separations are easier to be established Contrary to the classical and most contemporary conceptions of the principle the present account argues for a relational and negative conception of the separation of powers The legislative branch is conceived of as the one where political authority political power and social power are all equally represented The executive branch is best understood as excluding social power whereas the judicial branch is marked for its opposition to the influence of political power This conception avoids the pitfalls of essentialism and functionalism and makes the principle applicable in a much wider international context

Division of Power: Continuity and Change Marcin Romanowski, Bogumił Szmulik, Jarosław Szymanek, The separation of powers doctrine is undoubtedly one of the key principles of contemporary constitutionalism. Despite this it has not been framed into a single homogeneous and thus universal form. The abundance of approaches and nuances found in legal and political doctrine makes it an extremely labile and meandering concept which can take on a variety of shapes. Its legislative articulation is by no means uniform and thus reproducible either. The separation of powers in constitutional law is therefore expressed in a broad array of formulas sometimes explicitly sometimes implicitly. In addition it can take on a classic almost model form or it can be shaped in a significantly altered manner compared to what we used to call its model. The dispersion of ideas about what the separation of powers is where it originates or how to best frame and apply it in legislation and practice does not deprive the separation of powers of the nature of a timeless general notion that underlies the very concept of the division of power. After all the impulse to formulate the assumptions for the separation of powers was in each case triggered by the desire to eliminate the vesting of unlimited or excessive power in an individual or a narrow oligarchised group. Therefore its essence and also the main advantage is first of all protection against the despotism of power which translates into the specific benefit of consolidation of institutional guarantees of civil rights and liberties through the attribution of individual power functions to different branches of government and then their clear separation.
