Islamic Studies Punjab Text Board Class 9:

A comparative study of elite English-medium schools, public schools, and Islamic madaris in contemporary Pakistan Akhtar Hassan Malik, 2015-04-12 This ethnographic study examines the role of differing school knowledge in reproducing various social classes in the society. It was observed that an unequal availability of capital resources, agents' class habitus, and the type of their cultural currency act as selection mechanisms that clearly favour some social groups over others. The ruling classes ensure the transfer of their power and privilege to their children by providing them with quality education in elite schools. The disadvantaged classes are excluded from these unique institutions by both social and economic sanctions. They have no other option than to educate their children either in public schools or Islamic madaris. As a result, inequitable educational opportunities consolidate the existing social class hierarchy. (Re)Constructing Memory:

Textbooks, Identity, Nation, and State James H. Williams, Wendy D. Bokhorst-Heng, 2016-07-08 This book engages readers in thirteen conversations presented by authors from around the world regarding the role that textbooks play in helping readers imagine membership in the nation. Authors' voices come from a variety of contexts: some historical, some contemporary, some providing analyses over time. But they all consider the changing portrayal of diversity, belonging, and exclusion in multiethnic and diverse societies where silenced, invisible, marginalized members have struggled to make their voices heard and to have their identities incorporated into the national narrative. The authors discuss portrayals of past exclusions around religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation, as they look at the shifting boundaries of insider and outsider. This book is thus about who we are, not only demographically but also in terms of the past, especially how and whether we teach discredited pasts through textbooks. The concluding chapters provide ways forward in thinking about what can be done to promote curricula that are more inclusive, critical, and positively bonding in increasingly larger and more inclusive contexts.

Pakistan Under Siege Madiha Afzal, 2018-01-02 Over the last fifteen years, Pakistan has come to be defined exclusively in terms of its struggle with terror. But are ordinary Pakistanis extremists? And what explains how Pakistanis think? Much of the current work on extremism in Pakistan tends to study extremist trends in the country from a detached position: a top-down security perspective that renders a one-dimensional picture of what is at its heart a complex, richly textured country of 200 million people. In this book, using rigorous analysis of survey data, in-depth interviews in schools and universities in Pakistan, historical narrative reporting, and her own intuitive understanding of the country, Madiha Afzal gives the full picture of Pakistan's relationship with extremism. The author lays out Pakistanis' own views on terrorist groups, on jihad, on religious minorities, and non-Muslims, on America, and on their place in the world. The views are not radical at first glance but are riddled with conspiracy theories. Afzal explains how the two pillars that define the Pakistani state, Islam and a paranoia about India, have led to a regressive form of Islamization in Pakistan's narratives, laws, and curricula. These in turn have shaped its citizens' attitudes. Afzal traces this outlook to Pakistan's unique and tortured birth. She examines the rhetoric and the strategic actions of three actors in Pakistani politics the military the civilian governments and the Islamist parties and their relationships with militant groups She shows how regressive Pakistani laws instituted in the 1980s worsened citizen attitudes and led to vigilante and mob violence The author also explains that the educational regime has become a vital element in shaping citizens thinking How many years one attends school whether the school is public private or a madrassa and what curricula is followed all affect Pakistanis attitudes about terrorism and the rest of the world In the end Afzal suggests how this beleaguered nation one with seemingly insurmountable problems in governance and education can change course
