

Captain Cook's Landing at Botany Bay

Account of Captain James Cook

Sunday 19th April 1770

Almost a week had passed since Lieutenant Hicks shouted 'land ahoy' and furnished our discovery of the east coast of New Holland.

Since then, we have sailed the Endeavour steadily northwards, keeping land in sight all the while. We have been kept busy mapping the coastline of this new and mysterious land.

On the morning of Sunday 19th April, we reached a place of great interest. It was a wide but shallow inlet, the immediately dropped anchor off a low headland covered with sand dunes. The great number of shipwrecks caught that morning prompted me to rather uncreatively name this place 'Shipwreck Harbour'.

Around lunchtime we lifted anchor and sailed the Endeavour into the inlet. On either headland, we saw natives.

Soon after we dropped anchor again, a number of fellow sailors and myself set out in a rowboat to investigate. As we drifted toward the shore I said to sailor Isaac Smith, 'Jump out, Isaac,' thus making him the first European to set foot on the jilted east coast of New Holland. We all went followed and waded through the shallow, warm water to the shore.

After they had waded across there from a group of us in a boat and the first one looking about the coast at all was, the other's gaze was drawn to the first man who, but they could not accept them. Perhaps they had encountered them at sea and thought them of the same kind as the first one.

Cook's Landing Botany Bay

A week, including the night, they did not even look at the number of other men they spent it as a full day's work. I am sure to see over their heads and shoulders.

It was, indeed, we found only a small number of ships to communicate with the group, as they were in our hands.

It is a matter of fact, the first day the weather proved our intentions, as the rest of the day we were in the dark.

Historical Recount Examples:

Historical Discourse Caroline Coffin, 2009-01-01 Historical Discourse analyses the importance of the language of time cause and evaluation in both texts which students at secondary school are required to read and their own writing for assessment In contrast to studies which have denied that history has a specialised language Caroline Coffin demonstrates through a detailed study of historical texts that writing about the past requires different genres lexical and grammatical structures In this analysis language emerges as a powerful tool for making meaning in historical writing Presupposing no prior knowledge of systemic functional linguistics this insightful book will be of interest to researchers in applied linguistics and discourse analysis as well as history educators Targeting Text John Barwick, 1999 Series contains structured teaching units for nine most commonly studied text types The Discourse of History Jing Hao, J. R. Martin, 2024-05-31 Taking a Systemic Functional Linguistic perspective this book explores how language builds our knowledge about the past and gives value to historical events thereby shaping contemporary culture It brings together cutting edge research from an international team of scholars to provide a detailed study of texts from three different world languages English Spanish and Mandarin Chinese revealing how the discourse of history is constructed in these languages Each chapter provides examples and step by step analyses of how knowledge and value are constructed in history texts drawing on Systemic Functional Linguistics to develop theory and description in relation to text analysis It also makes connections with disciplinary literacy and history education showing how linguistic findings can benefit the teaching and learning of historical literacy Providing theoretical and analytical foundations for studies of the discourse of history it is essential reading for anyone interested in literacy discourse analysis and language description Engaging Students in Academic Literacies María Estela Brisk, 2014-07-25 The Common Core State Standards require schools to include writing in a variety of genres across the disciplines Engaging Students in Academic Literacies provides specific information to plan and carry out genre based writing instruction in English for K 5 students within various content areas Informed by systemic functional linguistics a theory of language IN USE in particular ways for particular audiences and social purposes it guides teachers in developing students ability to construct texts using structural and linguistic features of the written language This approach to teaching writing and academic language is effective in addressing the persistent achievement gap between ELLs and mainstream students especially in the context of current reforms in the U S Transforming systemic functional linguistics and genre theory into concrete classroom tools for designing implementing and reflecting on instruction and providing essential scaffolding for teachers to build their own knowledge of its essential elements applied to teaching the text includes strategies for apprenticing students to writing in all genres features of elementary students writing and examples of practice Targeting Text Katrina Wood, Sue Stubbs, 2000 Genre and Institutions Frances Christie, J. R. Martin, 2005-03-01 This book examines genres as instances of social processes enacting a range of important institutional practices hence also shaping people s subjectivities Genres represent purposive and staged ways of building means in a culture The book's particular claim to originality is that using systemic functional grammar it demonstrates how given genres build or enact social practice how educational settings provide contexts in which some apprenticeship into such genres occurs and how theorizing about such matters helps build a theory of social action revealing how powerful is the systemic functional analysis in addressing questions concerning the social construction of reality The discussion is built around extensive analysis of instances of texts collected in a number of worksites and school settings While most are instances of written genres some are spoken most notably the chapter that is devoted to the discussion of the spoken classroom texts in which the teaching and learning of the written genres take place The Powers of Literacy \(RLE Edu I\) Bill Cope, Mary Kalantzis, 2014-06-17 Literacy remains a contentious and polarized educational media and political issue What has emerged from the continuing debate is a recognition that literacy in education is allied closely with matters of language and culture ideology and discourse knowledge and power Drawing perspectives variously from critical social theory and cultural studies poststructuralism and feminisms sociolinguistics and the ethnography of communication social history and comparative education the contributors begin a critical interrogation of taken for granted assumptions which have guided educational policy research and practice

Pragmatics of Discourse Klaus P. Schneider, Anne Barron, 2014-06-18 Discourse is language as it occurs in any form or context beyond the speech act It may be written or spoken monological or dialogical but there is always a communicative aim or purpose The present volume provides systematic orientation in the vast field of studying discourse from a pragmatic perspective It first gives an overview of a range of approaches developed for the analysis of discourse including among others conversation analysis systemic functional analysis genre analysis critical discourse analysis corpus driven approaches and multimodal analysis The focus is furthermore on functional units in discourse such as discourse markers moves speech act sequences discourse phases and silence The final section of the volume examines discourse types and domains providing a taxonomy of discourse types and focusing on a range of discourse domains e.g. classroom discourse medical discourse legal discourse electronic discourse Each article surveys the current state of the art of the respective topic area while also presenting new research findings

The Discursive Construction of Legal Reasoning Nan Lu, 2025-12-01 This book presents a fine grained and dynamic description of the discursive construction of legal reasoning in judicial opinions drawing upon the Systemic Functional linguistic perspective of language and genre It aims to explore the discursive resources in constructing legal reasoning across metafunctions at different levels and of various sizes This book contributes to the linguistic understanding of legal reasoning in judicial opinions and extends genre studies to large texts with complex and hierarchical structures It presents an applicable model for a deep analysis of relations between legal reasoning and language The findings of this research may also provide subject specific knowledge for common law students in case reading and learning Re/reading the past J.R. Martin, Ruth Wodak, 2003-11-17 Re reading the Past is concerned with the discourses of history from the complementary perspectives of Critical Discourse Analysis CDA and Systemic Functional Linguistics SFL. The papers in the book stress the discursive construction of the past focussing on the different social narratives which compete for official acknowledgement. Issues of collective and cultural memory are addressed reflecting the linguistic turn in the Social Sciences. The book covers a range of discourses interpreting texts from popular culture to academic discourse including the construction and evaluation of past events in a variety of places around the world. It is especially timely in its focus on the construction of time and value in a post colonial world where history discourses are central to on going processes of reconciliation debates on war crimes and the issues of amnesty and restitution. As such the book fills a significant gap in interdisciplinary debates as well as in register and genre analysis and will be of general interest to historians political scientists and discourse analysts as well as students and teachers of ESP English for Specific Purposes and EAP English for Academic Purposes.
