As a result, I don't understand the existing literature. The problem is the terminology. The paper is mostly written in English, but the part containing Greek characters is written in the Cypriot. Reading Greek seriously is a reward and a challenge for the Greek people. But there is no right answer for this. It is better to use the word "Cypriot" than "Greek" because the latter is a more common word.

This method for identifying a single subject as a responder to a stimulus is commonly used in the study of the effects of drugs on the brain. It is based on the assumption that a single subject will respond to a stimulus in a consistent manner. This method is used to identify subjects who are responsive to a stimulus in a consistent manner.

The authors are grateful to the anonymous reviewers for their constructive comments and suggestions. The authors also thank the participants who provided their time and effort to complete the study.
