Suppressing Terrorist Financing and Money Laundering Jae-myong Koh, 2006-07-25 When watching the collapse of the Twin Towers on CNN 11 September 2001 the international community was awakened to the urgent needs of open discussion to identify the emerging threat and the way to cope with it Given the unprecedented heinous nature of the incident the moves that the international community made were quick and included countermeasures in various dimensions One of the major countermeasures highlighted as a result was to target the financial infrastructure of terrorist organisations In this campaign diverse organisations have participated including the Security Council Financial Action Task Force FATF IMF World Bank etc At the same time various methodologies have also been introduced at both the international and national level Such a consensus and mobilisation of sources to one end in the international community may be considered phenomenal in the history of public international law and without doubt merits an in depth analysis for both academic and practical purposes In this context this book examines the evolution and implementation of international standards on countering the financing of terrorism There are two dimensions to be taken into account to understand the structure of this book The first is concerned with a sequential perspective Given that 9 11 has provided a critical momentum in this area chapter 2 deals with the international position prior to 9 11 whereas chapters 3 4 and 5 analyse development following 9 11 The second is related to a hard law and soft law perspective

Suspending Suspicious Transactions Klaudio Stroligo, Horst Intscher, Susan Davis-Crockwell, 2013-07-18 Seizure and confiscation of proceeds of crime and funds intended to finance terrorism are key

objectives of the global initiative to combat money laundering and terrorism financing The timely identification and immobilization of such funds are critical to permit the action necessary to prevent the flight of illicit assets beyond the reach of national law enforcement and prosecutorial authorities Among the measures and tools that have been developed is the power for Financial Intelligence Units FIUs to order the postponement of transactions involving funds suspected of being related to money laundering or terrorism financing This power has been given to a significant number of FIUs but is not a mandatory element of the international anti money laundering and countering terrorist financing standards The World Bank and the Egmont Group undertook a joint study to gather information about the legal basis of this power and its practical application as well as the frequency and modalities of its use Detailed findings of this study are reported in this booklet together with a series of recommendations that address anomalies or perceived weaknesses in the structure and scope of this power and the manner in which it is used by FIUs In this regard it is worth mentioning some of the key recommendations flowing from the study that urge national authorities to Provide an explicit legal basis for the FIU s power to postpone suspicious transactions Identify the minimum requisite conditions for the FIU s exercise of this power Ensure that the legal provision for this power mandates a reasonable maximum duration for the FIU postponement order Introduce legal provisions to require the FIU to issue a written postponement order while allowing for an oral order in urgent cases Develop and implement effective mechanisms for coordination of the activities of reporting entities and public authorities involved in the postponement of transactions and follow on interventions that may be triggered by the postponement The report s findings and recommendations are intended to provide practical advice to those countries that may wish to review upgrade or strengthen their FIU s capacities to use this power It will also be an invaluable source of information and guidance to policy makers FIUs as well as law enforcement and prosecutorial authorities of countries that may be considering the introduction of this power

Asset Recovery Handbook Jean-Pierre Brun, Anastasia Sotiropoulou, Larissa Gray, Clive Scott, Kevin M. Stephenson, 2021-02-08 Developing countries lose billions each year through bribery misappropriation of funds and other corrupt practices Much of the proceeds of this corruption find safe haven in the world s financial centers These criminal flows are a drain on social services and economic development programs contributing to the impoverishment of the world s poorest countries Many developing countries have already sought to recover stolen assets A number of successful high profile cases with creative international cooperation has demonstrated that asset recovery is possible However it is highly complex involving coordination and collaboration with domestic agencies and ministries in multiple jurisdictions as well as the capacity to trace and secure assets and pursue various legal options whether criminal confiscation non conviction based confiscation civil actions or other alternatives This process can be overwhelming for even the most experienced practitioners It is exceptionally difficult for those working in the context of failed states widespread corruption or limited resources With this in mind the Stolen Asset Recovery StAR Initiative has developed and updated this Asset

Recovery Handbook A Guide for Practitioners to assist those grappling with the strategic organizational investigative and legal challenges of recovering stolen assets A practitioner led project the Handbook provides common approaches to recovering stolen assets located in foreign jurisdictions identifies the challenges that practitioners are likely to encounter and introduces good practices It includes examples of tools that can be used by practitioners such as sample intelligence reports applications for court orders and mutual legal assistance requests StAR the Stolen Asset Recovery Initiative is a partnership between the World Bank Group and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime that supports international efforts to end safe havens for corrupt funds StAR works with developing countries and financial centers to prevent the laundering of the proceeds of corruption and to facilitate more systematic and timely return of stolen assets Policing Global Regions Saskia Hufnagel, 2021-01-26 This book provides a stocktake and comparative socio legal analysis of law enforcement cooperation strategies in four different regions of the world the European Union EU North America Greater China and Australasia The work analyses law enforcement cooperation mechanisms within the socio legal framework of global normmaking The strategies addressed range from legal frameworks facilitating cooperation to formal and informal police networks and cooperation practices The study also takes into account crime specific engagement for example campaigns focusing on drug crimes terrorism financial crime kidnappings and other offences It explores challenges in policing practice and human rights protection in each region that could be countered by existing strategies in another As regions usually develop more advanced cooperation mechanisms than exist at a global scale strategies found in the former could help find solutions for the latter To map existing strategies and assess their impact on both human rights and policing practice this study relies on an assessment of the primary and secondary literature sources in each region as well as interviews with practitioners ranging from senior police officers to prosecutors government officials customs and military staff This book presents a valuable resource for academics and postgraduate students as well as policing and criminal justice practitioners government officials and policy makers
