This book presents state of the art research into English medium instruction (EMI) in European higher education over the last 20 years, offering a comprehensive comparative analysis toward identifying gaps in our understanding of relevant theories, research and practice. Molino, Dimova, Kling and Larsen argue for the need to take stock of the progression of EMI research in European higher education in order to consolidate scholarship and better inform EMI implementation in new contexts. Each chapter focuses on a different aspect of EMI implementation, including policies, attitudes, language use, assessment, training, learning outcomes, identity and intercultural communication across five different countries: Denmark, Croatia, Italy, the Netherlands and Spain. The book brings together the authors' collective work on an annotated database of over 200 resources, featuring a range of publications of varying format, type and language, as well as information on relevant research questions, methodologies and findings. This detailed approach allows in-depth discussions on the most widely researched areas in EMI, as well as those under-explored, toward outlining a way forward for future research in both the European higher education context and on a global scale. This book will be key reading for scholars working in the English medium instruction world.
