Learning published in 1992 with the sponsorship of the Music Educators National Conference MENC was hailed as a welcome addition to the literature on music education because it serves to provide definition and unity to a broad and complex field. This new companion volume again with the sponsorship of MENC explores the significant changes in music and arts education that have taken place in the last decade. Notably several chapters now incorporate insights from other fields to shed light on multi cultural music education, gender issues in music education and non musical outcomes of music education. Other chapters offer practical information on maintaining musicians health, training music teachers and evaluating music education programs. Philosophical issues such as musical cognition, the philosophy of research, theory, curriculum and educating musically are also explored in relationship to policy issues. In addition to surveying the literature, each chapter considers the significance of the research and provides suggestions for future study. Covering a broad range of topics and addressing the issues of music education at all age levels from early childhood to motivation and self regulation, this handbook is an invaluable resource for music teachers, researchers and scholars.

Scientific Information Transfer: The Editor's Role M. Balaban, 2012-12-06. It was Faraday who in 1821 said that there are three necessary stages of useful research: The first to begin it, the second to end it, and the third to publish it. There has since indeed been so much research and publication that we have become increasingly alarmed by the galloping proliferation of scientific information produced in relation to the user's ability to retrieve and consume it effectively, conveniently and creatively. In 1948 to deal with this concern, the Royal Society Scientific Information Conference held in London spanned the whole realm of scientific information. Sir Robert Robinson, President of the Royal Society, in his opening address noted that the study of scientific information services in all its ramifications has enormous scope and the London conference dealt with scientific publication, format, editorial policy, subject grouping, organization, abstracting, reviews, classification, indexing and training of information officers. It was about this time that information science began to develop more on the retrieval end so it seems logical that the first editors group founded in 1949 was ICSU AB, the International Council of Scientific Unions Abstracting Board. In 1958 the National Academy of Sciences International Conference of Scientific Information in Washington limited its interests and expanded on the later phases of the life cycle of information storage and retrieval.
