3. Because negotiating is ongoing until each side negotiates about exit out of joint
4. Each side's exit cost rises as players try getting to state and away to the state they prefer (exit cost is state action to achieve getting to the state)
5. These exit costs, caused by (3) and (4), give rise to incentives to delay and pass. Therefore, the negotiator will repeatedly negotiate until they have met. After a time, the negotiator is called back to the table by the other side. The result will be that the negotiator will exit.

It is interesting to consider the role of technology in the future of the world. It is not just the fact that technology is changing the way we live, but also the fact that it is changing the way we think. Technology is not just a tool, it is a way of life. It is the way we communicate, the way we learn, the way we work. It is the way we see the world. And it is the way we shape the future.

1. It is assumed that the insurance for the car is paid through a company with 100% in the market. (This means the firm is not one of the companies listed below.) It is also assumed that the insurance is not a renewable contract. (This means the insurance is not a contract that can be renewed for a new period.)

It is noted that the authors of this study do not suggest that the data obtained be used to assess the health of the company. It is recommended that the data be used to assess a firm's competitive position and to identify areas for improvement.
