A. Roelvink,Ad Reniers,2012 Process based morphodynamic modelling is one of the relatively new tools at the disposal of coastal scientists engineers and managers On paper it offers the possibility to analyse morphological processes and to investigate the effects of various measures one might consider to alleviate some problems For these to be applied in practice a model should be relatively straightforward to set up It should be accurate enough to represent the details of interest it should run long enough and robustly to see the real effects happen and the physical processes represented in such a way that the sediment generally goes in the right direction at the right rate Next practitioners must be able to judge if the patterns and outcomes of the model are realistic and finally translate these colour pictures and vector plots to integrated parameters that are relevant to the client or end user In a nutshell this book provides an in depth review of ways to model coastal processes including many hands on exercises Catalog University of Maine at Orono,1901 Structural Geology and Tectonics Field Guidebook — Volume 1 Soumyajit Mukherjee,2021-03-22 This book helps a novice to explore the terrain independently Geoscience fieldwork with a focus on structural geology and tectonics has become more important in the last few years from both academic and industrial perspectives This book also works as a resource material for batches of students or geological survey professional undergoing training as parts of their course curriculum Industry persons on the other hand can get a first hand idea about what to expect in the field in case no academic person is available with the team This book focused on structural geology and tectonics compiles for the very first time terrains from several regions of the globe
