Students at Risk of School Failure José Jesús Gázquez, José Carlos Núñez, 2018-10-18 The main objective of this Research Topic is to determine the conditions that place students at risk of school failure identifying student and context variables In spite of the fact that there is currently little doubt about how one learns and how to teach in some countries of the developed world there is still there is a high rate of school failure Although the term school failure is a very complex construct insofar as its causes consequences and development from the field of educational psychology the construct student engagement has recently gained special interest in an attempt to deal with the serious problem of school failure School engagement builds on the anatomy of the students involvement in school and describes their feelings behaviors and thoughts about their school experiences So engagement is an important component of students school experience with a close relationship to achievement and school failure Children who self set academic goals attend school regularly and on time behave well in class complete their homework and study at home are likely to interact adequately with the school social and physical environments and perform well in school In contrast children who miss school are more likely to display disruptive behaviors in class miss homework frequently exhibit violent behaviors on the playground fail subjects be retained and if the behaviors persist quit school Moreover engagement should also be considered as an important school outcome eliciting more or less supportive reactions from educators For example children who display school engaged behaviors are likely to receive motivational and instructional support from their teachers. The opposite may also be true. But what makes student engage more or less? The relevant literature indicates that personal variables e.g. sensory motor neurodevelopmental cognitive motivational emotional behavior problems learning difficulties addictions social and/or cultural variables e.g. negative family conditions child abuse cultural deprivation ethnic conditions immigration or school variables e.g. coexistence at school bullying cyberbullying may concurrently hinder engagement preventing the student from acquiring the learnings in the same conditions as the rest of the classmates.

Inclusive education for this student group represents a paradigm shift in providing quality education for all students. Around the globe this universal ideal has progressed a strengths based approach to student learning and encouraged mixed ability classrooms. Notwithstanding this milestone recent studies have highlighted persistent disparities in the formulation and implementation of inclusion policies inadequacies in teacher preparation and imbalances in access to resources. Factors such as these continue to pose challenges in achieving truly inclusive education for students with SEN. Given this context it is both timely and essential to undertake a critical reassessment of the inclusive education agenda for this student group. While policy frameworks may emphasize inclusion their real world translation often falls short leading to gaps between intention and realization. Moreover the limited enactment of evidence based practices at school and classroom levels continue to impede student engagement and learning. Furthermore there is a need to consider how inclusive education interfaces with the broader concepts of diversity equity and individualized learning. The goal of this Research Topic is to explore these complex issues identify underlying barriers and promote strategies that can genuinely move inclusive education forward for students with SEN. Professional Journal of the United States Army, 2014 Cue, 1972 Complete Year, Grade 5 Thinking Kids, 2014-06-02 Complete Year for
