Artificial Intelligence in Design '98 John S. Gero, Fay Sudweeks, 2012-12-06 The development of computational models of design founded on the artificial intelligence paradigm has provided an impetus for much of current design research. As artificial intelligence has matured and developed new approaches, so the impact of these new approaches on design research has been felt. This can be seen in the way concepts from cognitive science have found their way into artificial intelligence and hence into design research. And also in the way in which agent-based systems are being incorporated into design systems. In design research there is an increasing blurring between notions drawn from artificial intelligence and those drawn from cognitive science. Whereas a number of years ago the focus was largely on applying artificial intelligence to designing as an activity, thus treating designing as a form of problem solving, today we are seeing a much wider variety of conceptions of the role of artificial intelligence in helping to model and comprehend designing as a process. Thus we see papers in this volume which have as their focus the development or implementation of frameworks for artificial intelligence in design, attempting to determine a unique locus for these ideas. We see papers which attempt to find foundations for the development of tools based on the artificial intelligence paradigm; often the foundations come from cognitive studies of human designers. Bending Genre Margot Singer, Nicole Walker, 2022-12-15 Ever since the term creative nonfiction first came into widespread use, memoirists and journalists, essayists and fiction writers have faced off over where the border between fact and fiction lies. An early and influential book on questions of form in creative nonfiction, Bending Genre asks not where the boundaries between the genres should be drawn but what happens when you push the line. The expanded second edition doubles the first edition with 23 new essays that broaden the exploration of hybridity, structure, unconventionality, and resistance in creative nonfiction, pushing the conversation forward in diverse and exciting ways. Written for writers and students of creative writing, this collection brings together perspectives from leading writers of creative nonfiction, including Michael Martone, Brenda Miller, Ander Monson, David Shields, Kazim Ali, and in the new edition Catina Bacote, Ira Sukrungruang, Ingrid Horrocks, Elena Passarello, and Aviya Kushner. Each writer's innovative essay probes our notions of genre and investigates how creative nonfiction is shaped, modeling the forms of writing being discussed. Like creative nonfiction itself, Bending Genre is an exciting hybrid that breaks new ground. Features in the second edition: Updated introduction to the new edition; Expanded sections on Hybrids, Structures, and Unconventions; A new section on Resistances; 50 essays in all. Writing Essays About Literature Katherine O. Architectural Design and CAD Yvon Gardan, 2012-12-06 In any business the essential element for the successful use of data processing is training This represents the largest expense both at start up and as CAD impacts design office procedures other than drafting Training is also the most difficult cost item to quantify Even more than the equipment training or retraining in the case of professionals in practice is the key to increased productivity Recommendations for specific programs of training are beyond the scope of this paper Once staff has been retrained to work at higher levels of productivity with data processing equipment they are more valuable They will be more difficult to replace Their new capabilities represent a significant investment in modernization both to the individual design office and to the design profession as a whole There is a shortage of qualified people with both professional and computer skills Competition among employers for people with these skills already exists and will probably continue into the foreseeable future At the outset of training an employment agreement is worth considering for the well being of all parties
