©Harvard Medical School 2009

Our organisms manufacture antibodies automatically to many molecules, proteins, and microorganisms. Among others, when foreign red-cell surface glycoproteins (antigens) are in the bloodstream they stimulate the immune system to manufacture antibodies against them. These antibodies (antibodies) are proteins that recognize and react with the antigens. A reaction for testing compatibility between cells and antibodies is the following: when each antibody reacts with its corresponding antigen.

Model 1 – Red Blood Cells and Antibodies

	Person with Blood Type A	Person with Blood Type B	Person with Blood Type AB	Person with Blood Type O
Cell with attached antigen
Antibody present
Cells in the presence of anti-B antibody
Cells in the presence of anti-A antibody

1. Blood types in the human population are characterized by their presence or absence of antigens on their surfaces and their anti-bodies.

a. How many of Model 1, how many blood types are found in the human population?

b. Which antigen is used in Model 1 to represent anti-antigen?

c. What relationship is type A with blood and how is type B and blood type?
