Imagine My Surprise Unpublished Letters To The Daily Telegraph:

Imagine My Surprise... Iain Hollingshead, 2012-10-18 The essential humour gift book of the year returns in the anticipated fourth volume of this bestselling series guaranteed to provoke laughter and amazement The first volume of unpublished letters to the Daily Telegraph Am I Alone in Thinking not only became a Christmas bestseller but also established the paper's letter writers as a uniquely waggish eccentric and maverick institution They can be relied upon particularly in the letters slightly too pungent or off the wall to print to offer a new and memorable take on the great events of the day Now with the fourth book in the series Iain Hollingshead collects together our favourite letterwriters on everything from this summer's Olympics to the Queen's Diamond Jubilee as well as the rather more obscure concerns voiced by M the habitual correspondent who believes himself to be the head of MI5 but writes from an internet caf in Bristol Trenchant choleric and hilariously funny this will once again be the humour book of the year My Sunday Best Oliver

Pritchett, 2014-10-16 A witty compendium of musings on modern life from two of Britain's best loved father and son humorists Ever unafraid to tackle the great matters of the day and even more at home in the company of the apparently trivial Oliver Pritchett might lament the lost art of how to end a tedious phone conversation report on his investigations into the world's superfruits or answer such a pressing question as How does one spot a Bank Holiday Why do we clap at things that don't need applause or What is the correct protocol should Prince William land a helicopter in one's garden Anthologized for the first time and illustrated by his son Matt's brilliantly witty cartoons Oliver's writings reflect upon just how quaint odd and beautifully absurd life is So we invite you to sit back and enjoy this whimsical and comical collection of curious contemplations which quite simply well Just occurred to me What Will They Think Of Next...? Iain

Hollingshead, 2014-10-02 Readers of the Telegraph Letters Page will be fondly aware of the eclectic combination of learned wisdom wistful nostalgia and robust good sense that characterise its correspondence But what of the 95 per cent of the paper's huge postbag that never sees the light of day Some of the best letters inevitably arrive too late for the 24/7 news cycle or don't quite fit with the rest of the day's selection Others are just a little too whimsical or indeed too risqu to publish in a serious newspaper And more than a few are completely and utterly and wonderfully mad Thankfully Iain Hollingshead is on hand to give the authors of the best unpublished letters the stage they so richly deserve Baffled furious defiant mischievous they inveigh and speculate on every subject under the sun from the rubbish on television these days to the venality of our MPs The sixth book in the bestselling Unpublished Letters series with an agenda as enticing as ever What Will They Think of Next will prove once again that the Telegraph's readers have an astute sense of what really matters The Telegraph Book of the First World War Gavin Fuller, 2014-10-30 An WWI archive of Great Britain's Daily Telegraph news coverage reveals how the press influenced public perception of the Great War One hundred years on the First World War has not lost its power to clutch at the heart But how much do we really know about the war that would shape the twentieth century And all the more poignantly how much did people know at the time Today someone fires a shot on the other side of the world and we read about it online a few seconds later In 1914 with storm clouds gathering over Europe wireless telephony was in its infancy So newspapers such as the Daily Telegraph were for the British public their only access to official news about the progress of the war These reports many of them eye witness dispatches written by correspondents of the Daily Telegraph bring the WWI to life in an intriguing new way At times the effect is terrifying as accounts of the Somme Flanders and Gallipoli depict brave and glorious victories and the distinction between truth and propaganda becomes alarmingly blurred Some exude a sense of dramatic irony that is almost excruciating as one catches glimpses of how little the ordinary British people were told during the war of the havoc that was being wrought in their name Poignant passionate and shot through with moments of bleak humour The Telegraph Book of the First World War is a full account of the war by some of the country's most brilliant and colourful correspondents whose reportage shaped the way that the war would be understood for generations to come

Iain Hollingshead,2013-10-03 THE HILARIOUS ANNUAL COLLECTION OF READERS LETTERS THAT WERE JUST TOO LEFT FIELD OUTRAGEOUS OR WITTY TO MAKE THE PAGES OF THE TELEGRAPH SIR Two days of news about the Duchess of Cambridge and you haven't yet told us about her hospital gown Who designed it How much did it cost And has she worn it before SIR Sede vacante has not always been connected with the death of a pope When I was growing up in the 1970s we would use the expression at home to denote that the bathroom was free SIR Being a devoted husband as well as a staunch and active member of the Conservative Party I'd be grateful to learn what further changes it will adopt especially in regard to monogamy My wife could do with a bit more help around the house SIR Am I alone in wishing for an episode of the BBC's Countryfile in which a presenter's offer to lend a hand is turned down SIR I see in your Cyprus Bailout Live blog at 13.55 a reference to the Finish sic Europe Minister Thank goodness it is all over A letters page may seem antiquated in an era of texting and tweets yet the Telegraph's letters writers often bemused sometimes furious always erudite are a breed apart Writing to the Telegraph lets off steam confesses one regular correspondent and thank goodness for the rest of us that it does Now that anyone can publish their opinions online the Telegraph letters page remains a rare bastion of well written carefully edited wit on the topics of the day In this fifth volume of wise waggish and downright outrageous letters for which there wasn't enough space or editorial stomach in the paper we offer another hilariously alternative review of the year With an agenda as enticing as ever ranging from Chris Huhne's speeding points to a royal baby a new Pope to Andy Murray it will prove once again that the Telegraph's letters writers have an astute sense of what really matters How Did We End Up Here? Kate Moore,2023-11-28 Series statement from front jacket flap

Why I Wrote wot I Wrote Bruce Denness,2023-07-21 As Joanna Lumley notes in her preface Bruce Denness has always trod a precarious path between serious science and philosophical frivolity The science reached its peak at the British Geological Survey and Newcastle University in the 1970s but even then and certainly since he always looked for the funny side of whatever he was involved in which may explain why his research has seldom been taken seriously Bruce was born in 1942 on a farm in the Isle of Wight where he grew up His career then took him to the mainland or England as it is known on the Isle of Wight and several countries in the Caribbean South America and the Far East before he settled back on the Island again in 1984 Experiences gained during those years have contributed to the many letters that Bruce has since had published mainly in The Telegraph and New Scientist Admittedly some of them may also have been influenced by regular visits to The White Horse Inn at Whitwell Isle of Wight for invigorating Shiraz treatment The Academy and Literature ,1893 The Athenaeum ,1892 The Illustrated London News ,1927 Country Life ,1974-11 Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists ,1976-10 The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists is the premier public resource on scientific and technological developments that impact global security Founded by Manhattan Project Scientists the Bulletin s iconic Doomsday Clock stimulates solutions for a safer world The Commercial Telegraphers' Journal ,1933

L. Courtney,2015-07-04 Excerpt from Is It a New World A Series of Articles and Letters Contributed by Correspondents to the Daily Telegraph August September 1920 The articles and letters included in this volume form a curious chapter in the annals of contemporary thought The question Is it a New World originally suggested by Viscount Burnham to which they are an answer was found to be one which a large number of people were asking themselves with an intense interest only equalled by the baffling variety of their opinions and standpoints Dean Inge s letter which was the starting point of the whole discussion raised certain points of controversy which debated backwards and forwards ran through most of the contributions sent to the Editor of the Daily Telegraph in solution or partial solution of the problem which had been propounded The main distinction between the views of the Optimist and the Pessimist remained clear throughout the whole correspondence but it was overlaid and diversified by a number of subordinate points as each writer put forward the main critical issues which appealed to his own intelligence It is inevitable of course that every controversy should decline from the large initial conceptions with which it starts to the smaller and more acutely felt interests and prejudices of the individual About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving
