

Magnetism Review 2020

What is magnetism? It is a force that can attract or repel objects. This force is caused by the movement of electric charges.

There are two types of magnets: permanent magnets and temporary magnets. Permanent magnets are made of materials that are always magnetic, such as iron, nickel, and cobalt. Temporary magnets are made of materials that are only magnetic when they are in the presence of a magnetic field, such as a piece of iron.

Magnets have two poles: a north pole and a south pole. Like poles repel each other, and opposite poles attract each other. This is why a north pole and a south pole will attract each other, while two north poles or two south poles will repel each other.

The strength of a magnetic field is measured in tesla (T). The Earth's magnetic field is very weak, with a strength of about 0.00005 T. However, some magnets can have a much stronger field, with strengths up to 10 T or more. The strength of a magnetic field decreases as you move away from the magnet.
