

This paper is about what I believe Hamlet meant by his famous question "to be or not to be". It is also about what events of the play prompt this speech. I believe that Hamlet was considering suicide to end his life. The "To be or Not to be" speech portrays Hamlet as a very confused man. He is very unsure of himself and his thoughts often waver between two extremes due to his relatively strange personality. In the monologue, he contemplates whether or not he should continue or end his own life. He also considers seeking revenge for his father's death. Evidence of his over thinking and uncertainty is not only shown in this speech, but it also can be referenced in other important parts of the play.

In addition, throughout the speech, it is obvious that Hamlet is over thinking and wavering between two different extremes: life and death. One reason is because in the book he says "Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune Or to take arms against a sea of troubles, And by opposing end them" (3, 1, 56-60). In this quotation, Hamlet wonders whether he should live and suffer the hardships that his life has to offer him or die in order to end the suffering. He believes that life is synonymous with suffering. Second reason is because Hamlet also thinks and says the "whips and scorn of time, Th'oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely, The pangs of disprized love, the law's delay, The insolence of office, and the spurns That patient merit of th'unworthy takes" (3, 1, 70-74) are all the suffering he sees in life. All Hamlet thinks about is his sufferings and just wants to end it. Last reason is Hamlet says out loud that "To die, to sleep -no more; and by a sleep to say we end The heart-ache and the thousand natural shocks...To sleep, perchance to dream" (3, 1, 60-65). He is thinking that if he chooses to kill himself, all of his heartaches would be put to rest. He would no longer have to watch his uncle reign over the kingdom.

Furthermore, I also believe that Hamlet truly meant to commit suicide by this statement because of all the drama that is occurring. His father's ghost has told him what happened and demands revenge. Hamlet has two ways of taking arms against the sea of troubles he faces-- committing murder, or committing suicide. Second reason why I believe he is planning to kill himself is because he gives another indication of his possibly suicidal misery in Act 2, Scene 2, when he says that he will walk out of the air and "into the grave." Third reason is because Hamlet talks about the afterlife. He says that the miseries of life are such that no one would willingly bear them, except that they are afraid of "something after death" (III i 80). Because we do not know what to expect in the afterlife, we would rather "bear those ills we have," Hamlet says, "then fly to others that we know not of" (III i 83-84).

In conclusion, there many reasons why I believe Hamlet is truly thinking about committing suicide when he says "To be or Not to be". To name a few, first, is because in the book he says "Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer The slings and arrows of outrageous
