These challenges require a variety of approaches to management, but I think you can see the general idea: get better quality, or just plain improvement, the cheapest. I always remember <sup>the old</sup> saying in the stage business: "Good-looking people are being sought, good-looking and cheap." (The second part is important, since I believe we're always being sought.) I'm usually somewhat sympathetic toward efforts that get right the problem, but that, I think, is the real test for these days. When asked:
