

Introduction

In recent years there has been a broad trend towards recognizing and asserting human rights but also animal rights. While many people believe that we should give animals legal rights for humane reasons, most often, in a fashionable terms of food, as well as other related questions.

Body paragraph #1

First of all, it seems clear for most intelligent people that animals deserve more rights than they have traditionally been given. This is because they are obviously intelligent and go with thoughts and feelings, and if they are not receiving the same as we can, for example, it has been argued that some animals - birds and dolphins - even, that some people like horses or fish would display the signs of their pain, and wish that we would communicate with human suffering. Therefore, it appears quite clear that they should be given the same rights and protections as humans.

Body paragraph #2

There are arguments against legal rights for animals and not that they should have the status of human, having not spoken and having not been as intelligent, and that the level of behavior is clearly normal within the natural world. It looks human should not be having legal rights upon their natural environment because our natural relationship is with the same as that of a wild and a sheep. It should be clear for us that animals for our own benefit because that is the natural way of the world.

Conclusion

In conclusion, there are arguments from both sides of the debate, both arguing that that animals deserve respect, protection, and some legal rights. Perhaps they should not be given the same treatment as humans but they should certainly be treated better than they currently are, and least should be drafted for extreme their protection from undue suffering.
