Assessment of Experimental Longwall Recovery Rooms for Increasing Productivity and Expediting Equipment Removal Operations Eric R. Bauer, Jeffrey M. Listak, Mike Berdine, 1989 OECD Reviews of Evaluation and Assessment in Education: Bulgaria Guthrie Caitlyn, Norfolk-Beadle Annie, Perico E Santos Anna Vitoria, Henderson Kirsteen, Rawkins Christa, Fordham Elizabeth, Li Ruochen, 2022-03-29 Over the past three decades Bulgaria has carried out important structural reforms which have helped the country reach higher levels of socio economic development However long standing social disparities and income inequalities remain and Bulgaria s overall productivity gains have not fully translated into sustainable and inclusive growth Climate change, migration and rural adaptation in the Near East and North Africa region Szaboova, L., 2023-04-18 While there are instances where individuals or households are forcibly displaced or leave because they feel a decent life is no longer possible migration is more than just a response to an unfolding crisis Under certain conditions migration can be a proactive livelihood diversification strategy that contributes to rural households capacity to adapt to changing conditions Assessment and Monitoring of Human Movement Cristian Romagnoli, Giuseppe Annino, Elvira Padua, Vincenzo Bonaiuto, 2025-10-03 Human movement studies have long involved researchers from various scientific disciplines such as biomechanics functional anatomy physiology and neuroscience in responding to the growing demand in sports science for reliable and accurate methods and tools for monitoring and evaluating physical performance Accurately measuring body movement data i e walking running throwing swimming and paddle stroke is useful for identifying biomechanical and kinetics and physiological and metabolic variables However the transition of functional assessment of physical activity with accurate and reliable data from the laboratory to the daily life environment has been complex Thanks to technological innovation miniaturized and wearable sensors can non invasively measure and monitor kinematic and dynamic data related to the performance of a specific sport of physical activity broadening their application in the clinical field such as monitoring and improving patient care directly at home or at a distance Therefore the quantitative analysis of human movement is a necessary and effective tool that helps transversally both the medical physical fitness and wellness and the purely competitive environment linked to high level sport Climate Change and People on the Move Fanny Thornton, 2018-10-24 This book applies a justice framework to analysis of the actual and potential role of international law with respect to people on the move in the context of anthropogenic climate change That people are affected by the impacts of climate change is no longer doubted including with implications for people movement migration displacement relocation etc Climate Change and People on the Move tackles unique questions concerning international responsibility for people movement arising from the inequities inherent to climate change Corrective and distributive justice provide the analytical backbone and are explored in a substantial theoretical chapter and then applied to subsequent contextual analysis Corrective justice supports analysis as to whether people movement in the climate change context could be conceived or framed as

harm loss or damage which is compensable under international law either through fault centred regimes or no fault regimes i.e insurance Distributive justice supports analysis as to whether such movement could be conceived or framed as a disproportionate burden either for those faced with movement or those faced with sheltering people on the move from which duties of re distribution may stem This book contributes to the growing scholarship and analysis concerning international law or governance and people movement in response to the impacts of climate change by investigating the bounds of the law where the phenomenon is viewed as one of in justice

Building Writing Center Assessments That Matter Ellen Schendel, William J. Macauley, 2012-10-16 No less than other divisions of the college or university contemporary writing centers find themselves within a galaxy of competing questions and demands that relate to assessment questions and demands that usually embed priorities from outside the purview of the writing center itself Writing centers are used to certain kinds of assessment both quantitative and qualitative but are often unprepared to address larger institutional or societal issues In Building Writing Center Assessments that Matter Schendel and Macauley start from the kinds of assessment strengths already in place in writing centers and they build a framework that can help writing centers satisfy local needs and put them in useful dialogue with the larger needs of their institutions while staying rooted in writing assessment theory The authors begin from the position that tutoring writers is already an assessment activity and that good assessment practice rooted in the work of Adler Kassner O'Neill Moore and Huot already reflects the values of writing center theory and practice They offer examples of assessments developed in local contexts and of how assessment data built within those contexts can powerfully inform decisions and shape the futures of local writing centers With additional contributions by Neal Lerner Brian Huot and Nicole Caswell and with a strong commitment to honoring on site local needs the volume does not advocate a one size fits all answer But like the modeling often used in a writing consultation examples here illustrate how important assessment principles have been applied in a range of local contexts Ultimately Building Writing Assessments that Matter describes a theory stance toward assessment for writing centers that honors the uniqueness of the writing center context and examples of assessment in action that are concrete manageable portable and adaptable
