

Module 56: Theories and Physiology of Emotion

What makes it easy for our feelings to hijack our thinking?

The amygdala sends more neural projections up to the cortex than it receives back.

Lazarus conceded that some emotional responses do not require conscious thinking.

Table 96.1 Summary of Emotion Theories

| Theory           | Explanation of Emotions                                                                                           | Example                                                                                |
|------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| James-Lange      | Emotions arise from our awareness of our bodily responses to emotion-arousing stimuli: stimulus- arousal- emotion | We observe our heart racing after a threat and then we feel afraid                     |
| Cannon-Bard      | Emotion-arousing stimuli trigger our bodily responses and simultaneous subjective experience                      | Our heart races at the same time that we feel afraid                                   |
| Schachter-Singer | Our experience of emotion depends on two factors: general arousal and a conscious cognitive label                 | We may interpret our arousal as fear or excitement, depending on the context           |
| Zajonc; LeDoux   | Some embodied responses happen instantly, without conscious appraisal                                             | We automatically feel startled by a sound in the forest before labeling it as a threat |
| Lazarus          | Cognitive appraisal (is it dangerous or not?)- sometimes without our awareness- defines emotion                   | The sound is "just the wind"                                                           |
