Chapter 11: Cell Communication

Chapters 9, 10, and 11 form three of the most difficult chapters in the book. The special challenge in Chapter 11 is not that the material is so difficult, but that most of the material will be completely new to you. Cell communication is normally not covered in standard high school biology books, yet perhaps no other section of biology has grown as much as cell signaling has in the last ten years. Take your time with this section, and you will be rewarded with a knowledge base that will be most helpful in this course and courses to come.

Concept 11.1 External signals are converted into responses within the cell

1. What is a signal transduction pathway?

The steps that turn a signal from outside the cell into a change inside the cell.

2. How does yeast mating serve as an example of a signal transduction pathway?

yeast cells use chemical signaling to identify cells of opposite mating type (  $\alpha$  &  $\alpha$ ) and start the mating process

3. Complete the chart of local chemical signaling in cell communication in animals.

Local Signaling Types	Specific Example
Paracrine	Multiple cells can receive and respond at the same time to growth factor molecules, which are compounds produced by a nearby cell to stimulate target cells to grow and divide. ex: platelet derived growth factor
Synaptic	An electrical signal in a nerve cell causes the release of neurotransmitter molecules, which carry a chemical signal across the synapse and trigger a response in the target cell. ex: acetylcholine

4. How does a hormone qualify as a long-distance signaling example?

In endocrine signaling in animals, specialized cells release hormones that travel through the circulatory system to reach target cells, which recognize and respond to them. In plants, hormones (also called plant growth regulators) may travel through vessels, move between cells, or diffuse through the air as gases to reach their targets.
