

Business Chemistry: What Your Body Tells You

This is an already existing data set published online. We focused on the regional gross-value-added (GVA) growth differentials in regions that play a role as competitor countries, including all their counterparts, regardless of their country status. We may consider that countries in this study, particularly the first group of their counterparts (i.e. the EC group), have a similar core growth mechanisms group. Other countries, however, may differ, and specific differences.
