Making Global Society Barry Buzan, 2023-08-10 Barry Buzan proposes a new approach to making International Relations a truly global discipline that transcends both Eurocentrism and comparative civilisations. He narrates the story of humankind as a whole across three eras using its material conditions and social structures to show how global society has evolved. Deploying the English School's idea of primary institutions and setting their story across three domains: interpolity, transnational and interhuman, this book conveys a living historical sense of the human story whilst avoiding the overabstraction of many social science grand theories. Buzan sharpens the familiar story of three main eras in human history with the novel idea that these eras are separated by turbulent periods of transition. This device enables a radical retelling of how modernity emerged from the late 18th century. He shows how the concept of global society can build bridges connecting International Relations, Global Historical Sociology and Global World History. The Latest Early American Literature R. C. De Prosopo, 2016-01-21

The Latest Early American Literature according to readers for the University of Delaware Press is a collection of polemics and manifestoes. In it R. C. De Prosopo bids to follow in the footsteps of the two rare early Americanist dissenters whom Philip F. Gura once distinguished as prophets without honor in the field: William Spengemann and Michael Colacurcio. The book contends that a supposedly retired nationalist modernist telos continues to reign in most of the latest scholarship and even more influentially in all of the current literary histories and anthologies, no matter how expansive in gender, ethnic, racial and hemispheric inclusiveness they profess to be. Old telos in particular that old American exceptionalist one can be cunning. Updating and expanding upon essays written over the past thirty years, De Prosopo proposes not only negatively to critique how the latest scholarly receptions of early American literature differ insignificantly from the earlier ones but positively to propose how a transnationalist concession that as a neocolonial culture America's lags behind that of Europe might advance post-modern historiography by radically repositioning the past as no longer the present's diachronic predecessor but to quote Lyotard's semiotics its synchronic differend. Closer to earth, De Prosopo tries at the same time to remain mindful of the pedagogical imperative that ultimately to save the texts of early American literature will require making them legible to average non-specialist, never to become specialist undergraduate general education students. To facilitate this, he introduces in the concluding section of The Latest Early American Literature what will probably be taken as its most radical intervention: the redefinition of Edgar Allan Poe as an early American writer. Ways of Seeing Women's Diotima at the Barricades Paul Allen Miller, 2015-12-17 Diotima at the Barricades argues that the debates that emerged from the burgeoning of feminist intellectual life in post modern France involved complex structured and reciprocal exchanges on the interpretation and position of Plato and other ancient texts in the western philosophical and literary tradition Paul Allen Miller shows how individual works of Anglo American figures such as Toril Moi Judith Butler and Kaja Silverman as well as movements such as queer theory are rooted in feminist theoretical debates that began in the sixties in France and have continued right up to the present day Miller demonstrates that French philosophy as represented by writers as diverse as Julia Kristeva Hélène Cixous Sarah Kofman Jacques Lacan Jacques Derrida and Luce Irigaray have had a profound influence on literary theoretical and cultural studies in the Anglo American world He reveals that in order to understand the intellectual substructure of much of later Anglo American critical theory it is crucial to examine the development of post modern French feminist thought in relation to its dialogue with antiquity In modern feminism and post structuralism the ancient world and Plato in particular truly function as our theoretical unconscious Radical Psychoanalysis Barnaby B. Barratt, 2016-05-20 2020 American Board Academy of Psychoanalysis ABAPsa book award winner Only by the method of free association could Sigmund Freud have demonstrated how human consciousness is formed by the repression of thoughts and feelings that we consider dangerous Yet today most therapists ignore this truth about our psychic life This book offers a critique of the many brands of contemporary psychoanalysis and psychotherapy that have forgotten Freud's revolutionary discovery Barnaby B Barratt offers a fresh and compelling vision of the structure and function of the human psyche building on the pioneering work of theorists such as André Green and Jean Laplanche as well as contemporary deconstruction feminism and liberation philosophy He explores how drive or desire operates dynamically between our biological body and our mental representations of ourselves of others and of the world we inhabit This dynamic vision not only demonstrates how the only authentic freedom from our internal imprisonments comes through free associative praxis it also shows the extent to which other models of psychoanalysis such as ego psychology object relations self psychology and interpersonal relations tend to stray disastrously from Freud's original and revolutionary insights This is a vision that understands the central issues that imprison our psychic lives the way in which the reflections of consciousness are based on the repression of our innermost desires the way in which our erotic vitality is so often repudiated and the way in which our socialization oppressively stifles our human spirit Radical Psychoanalysis restores to the discipline of psychoanalysis the revolutionary impetus that has so often been lost It will be essential reading for psychoanalysts psychoanalytic psychotherapists mental health practitioners and students and academics with an interest in the history of psychoanalysis How Do I Know Thee? Richard E. Goodkin, 2015-06-22 The classical period in France presents a particularly lively battleground for the transition between oral visual culture on the one hand and print culture on the other The former depended on learning from sources of knowledge directly in their presence in a manner analogous to theatrical experience The latter became characterized by the distance and abstraction of reading How Do I Know Thee explores the ways in which literature philosophy and psychology approach social cognition or how we come to know others Richard E Goodkin describes a central opposition between what he calls theatrical cognition and narrative cognition drawing both on scholarship on literary genre and mode and also on the work of a number of philosophers and psychologists in particular Descartes s theory of cognition Freudian psychoanalysis mid twentieth century behaviorism and the field of cognitive science The result is a study that will be of interest not only to students of the classical period but also to those in the corresponding disciplines The Cambridge Introduction to

Tactile Poetics Sarah Jackson, 2015-06-07 A new critical perspective on the relationship between text and tact in 20th and 21st century literature and theory The Painting of Modern Life T. J. Clark, 2015-02-17 The Paris of the 1860s and 1870s was supposedly a brand new city equipped with boulevards caf s parks and suburban pleasure grounds the birthplace of those habits of commerce and leisure that constitute modern life Questioning those who view Impressionism solely in terms of artistic technique T J Clark describes the painting of Manet Degas Seurat and others as an attempt to give form to that modernity and seek out its typical representatives be they bar maids boaters prostitutes sightseers or petits bourgeois lunching on the grass The central question of The Painting of Modern Life is this did modern painting as it came into being celebrate the consumer oriented culture of the Paris of Napoleon III or open it to critical scrutiny The revised edition of this classic book includes a new preface by the author Paratransit in African Cities Roger Behrens, Dorothy McCormick, David Mfinanga, 2015-09-07 Public transport systems in contemporary Sub Saharan African cities are heavily reliant upon paratransit services These services are defined as informal transportation which operates between the public and individual private spheres In Africa paratransit is characterized by low quality of vehicles and chaotic management but it also provides cheap accessible and flexible transport solutions for the urban poor It is typically poorly regulated and operates as a set of informal businesses A common result of weak public sector regulation and a fare strategy in which owners claim a fixed daily revenue target and drivers who keep the variable balance as income is destructive competition and poor quality of service There is an incontrovertible case for improving the quality reliability and coverage of public transport systems and some city governments have attempted to do so by initiating reform projects that envisage the phased replacement of paratransit operations with formalised bus rapid transit systems In this book the authors argue that there are however path dependencies and constraints that limit the possible extent of public transport system reform Paratransit operations also have some inherent advantages with respect to demand responsiveness and service innovation Attempts to eradicate paratransit may be neither pragmatic nor strategic Two future scenarios are likely hybrid systems comprised of both paratransit and formally planned modes and systems improved by upgrades and strengthened regulation of existing paratransit services The business strategies and aspirations of incumbent paratransit operators in three case cities Cape Town Dar es Salaam and Nairobi are discussed as well as their attitudes towards emerging public transport reform projects

International experiences of hybrid system regulation and paratransit business development are reviewed in order to explore policy options The authors contend that policies recognising paratransit operators and seeking contextually appropriate complementarity with formalised planned services will produce greater benefits than policies ignoring their continued existence

Credit Culture Nicky Marsh, 2020-07-16 This book offers a new reading of the relationship between money culture and literature in America in the 1970s The gold standard ended at the start of this decade a moment which is routinely treated as a catalyst for the era of postmodern abstraction This book provides an alternative narrative one that traces the racialized and gendered histories of credit offered by the intertextual narratives of writers such as E L Doctorow Toni Morrison Marilyn French William Gaddis Thomas Pynchon and Don De Lillo It argues that money in the 1970s is better read through a narrative of political consolidation than formal rupture as these histories foreground the closing down rather than opening up of serious debates about what American money should be and who it should serve These novels and this moment remain important because they alert us to imagine the alternative histories of credit that were imaginatively proposed but never realized
