Gender, Health, and History in Modern East Asia Angela Ki Che Leung, Izumi Nakayama, 2017-11-22 This groundbreaking volume captures and analyzes the exhilarating and at times disorienting experience when scientists government officials educators and the general public in East Asia tried to come to terms with the introduction of Western biological and medical sciences to the region. The nexus of gender and health is a compelling theme for this is an area in which private lives and personal characteristics encounter the interventions of public policies. The nine empirically based studies by scholars of history of medicine, sociology, anthropology and STS, science, technology and society, spanning Japan, Korea, China, Taiwan and Hong Kong from the 1870s to the present, demonstrate just how tightly concerns with gender and health have been woven into the enterprise of modernization and nation building throughout the long twentieth century. The concepts of gender and health have become so commonly used that one might overlook that they are actually complicated notions with vexed histories even in their native contexts. Transposing such terminologies into another historical or geographical dimension is fraught with problems and what makes the East Asian cases in this volume particularly illuminating is that they present concepts of gender and health in motion. The studies show how individuals and societies made sense of modern scientific discourses on diseases, body, sex and reproduction, redefining existing terms in the process and adopting novel ideas to face new challenges and demands. Whether reviewing the comparative national histories of birth control, debating early cases of transsexual surgery or highlighting the resurgence of traditional Asian medical commodities, this volume provides accessible and productive studies on these intriguing topics in Asia. Scholars of modern East Asia and indeed anyone concerned with the analysis of gender and health in light of intersecting postcolonial studies will find the book rewarding.

Rethinking the Age of Emancipation Martin Baumeister, Philipp Lenhard, Ruth Nattermann, 2020-03-20

Since the end of the nineteenth century, traditional historiography has emphasized the similarities between Italy and Germany as late nations, including the parallel roles of great men such as Bismarck and Cavour. Rethinking the Age of Emancipation aims at a critical reassessment of the development of these two late nations from a new and transnational perspective. Essays by an international and interdisciplinary group of scholars examine the discursive relationships among nationalism, war and emancipation, as well as the ambiguous roles of historical protagonists with competing national, political and religious loyalties.

Handbook of Race and Ethnicity in Asia Michael Weiner, 2021-09-30

The Routledge Handbook of Race and Ethnicity in Asia introduces theoretical approaches to the study of race, ethnicity and indigeneity in Asia beyond those commonly grounded in the Western experience. The volume's twenty-eight chapters consider not only the relationship between ethnic or racial minorities and the state, but social relations within and between individual and transnational communities. These shape not only the contours of governance but also the means by which knowledge of national identity, self and other have been constructed and reconstructed over time. Divided into four sections, it provides holistic and comparative coverage of South

South East and East Asia as well as Australasia and Oceania an area that extends from Pakistan in the West to Hawai i in the East Contributors to this handbook offer a variety of disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives opening a domain of scholarship wherein the relationship between phenotype and racism is less pronounced than European and North American approaches which have often privileged the so called colour stigmata leading to further exclusions of particular ethnic racial and indigenous communities This volume seeks to overcome racism and white ideologies embedded in theories of race and ethnicity in Asia proving a valuable resource to both students and scholars of comparative racial and ethnic studies international relations and human rights
