1. Identify the problem. The first step in the problem-solving process is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the situation, gathering information, and defining the problem in clear, specific terms.
2. Analyze the problem. Once the problem is identified, the next step is to analyze it. This involves breaking the problem down into smaller, more manageable parts and identifying the underlying causes.
3. Generate solutions. The third step is to generate potential solutions. This involves brainstorming ideas and considering different approaches to solving the problem.
4. Evaluate solutions. The fourth step is to evaluate the potential solutions. This involves comparing the solutions against the problem and considering the pros and cons of each.
5. Implement the solution. The fifth step is to implement the chosen solution. This involves putting the solution into action and monitoring its progress.
6. Evaluate the results. The final step is to evaluate the results of the solution. This involves assessing whether the solution has effectively solved the problem and whether there are any lessons learned.
- Problem Solving Process: A systematic approach to solving problems, often involving the following steps:
1. Identify the problem. Clearly define the issue or goal.
 2. Analyze the problem. Break down the problem into smaller, manageable parts.
 3. Generate solutions. Brainstorm potential solutions or strategies.
 4. Evaluate solutions. Assess the feasibility and effectiveness of each solution.
 5. Implement the solution. Put the chosen solution into action.
 6. Evaluate the results. Monitor the progress and outcomes of the solution.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program significantly improved the subjects' physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, the 12-minute walk test, and the 400-meter walk test. The walking program also significantly improved the subjects' psychological health, as measured by the Beck Depression Inventory, the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory, and the Visual Analog Scale. The walking program had no significant effect on the subjects' weight, blood pressure, or cholesterol levels. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
