Access to large data sets has led to a paradigm shift in the tourism research landscape. Big data is enabling a new form of knowledge gain while at the same time shaking the epistemological foundations and requiring new methods and analysis approaches. It allows for interdisciplinary cooperation between computer sciences and social and economic sciences and complements the traditional research approaches. This book provides a broad basis for the practical application of data science approaches such as machine learning, text mining, social network analysis and many more which are essential for interdisciplinary tourism research. Each method is presented in principle, viewed analytically and its advantages and disadvantages are weighed up and typical fields of application are presented. The correct methodical application is presented with a how to approach together with code examples allowing a wider reader base including researchers, practitioners and students entering the field. The book is a very well structured introduction to data science not only in tourism and its methodological foundations accompanied by well chosen practical cases. It underlines an important insight: data are only representations of reality; you need methodological skills and domain background to derive knowledge from them. Hannes Werthner, Vienna University of Technology. Roman Egger has accomplished a difficult but necessary task: make clear how data science can practically support and foster travel and tourism research and applications. The book offers a well taught collection of chapters giving a comprehensive and deep account of AI and data science for tourism. Francesco Ricci, Free University of Bozen Bolzano. This well structured and easy to read book provides a comprehensive overview of data science in tourism. It contributes largely to the methodological repository beyond traditional methods. Rob Law, University of Macau. JIMD Reports, Volume 32 Eva Morava, Matthias Baumgartner, Marc Patterson, Shamima Rahman, Johannes Zschocke, Verena Peters, 2017-02-28. Kessel,Anne W. Lee,Søren M. Bentzen,Bhadrasain Vikram,Fridtjof Nuesslin,Stephanie E. Combs,2018-04-12 In radiation oncology as in many other specialties clinical trials are essential to investigate new therapy approaches Usually preparation for a prospective clinical trial is extremely time consuming until ethics approval is obtained To test a new treatment usually many years pass before it can be implemented in the routine care During that time already new interventions emerge new drugs appear on the market technical physical innovations are being implemented novel biology driven concepts are translated into clinical approaches while we are still investigating the ones from years ago Another problem is associated with molecular diagnostics and the growing amount of tumor specific biomarkers which allows for a better stratification of patient subgroups On the other side this may result in a much longer time for patient recruiting and consequently in larger multicenter trials Moreover all of the relevant data must be readily available for treatment decision making treatment as well as follow up and ultimately for trial evaluation This challenges even more for agreed standards in data acquisition quality and management How could we change the way currently clinical trials are performed in a way they are safe and ethically justifiable and speed up the initiation process so we can provide new and better treatments faster for our patients Further while we rely on various quantitative information handling distributed large heterogeneous amounts of data efficiently is very important Thus data management becomes a strong focus A good infrastructure helps to plan tailor and conduct clinical trials in a way they are easy and quickly analyzable In this research topic we want to discuss new ideas for intelligent trial designs and concepts for data management Physical exercise for age-related neuromusculoskeletal disorders Xue-Qiang Wang,Min Hu,Li Li,Dongsheng Xu,Howe Liu,2023-01-19
