Manual of Simulation in Healthcare Richard H. Riley, 2008. Medical simulation is a relatively new science that is achieving respectability among healthcare educators worldwide. Simulation and skills centres have become established to integrate simulation into mainstream education in all medical, nursing, and paramedical fields. Borrowing from the experience and methodologies of industries that are using simulation, medical educators are grappling with the problem of rapidly acquiring the skills and techniques required to implement simulation programmes into established curricula. This book assists both novice and experienced workers in the field to learn from established practitioners in medical simulation. Simulation has been used to enhance the educational experience in a diverse range of fields; therefore, a wide variety of disciplines are represented. The book begins with a section on the logistics of establishing a simulation and skills centre, and the inherent problems with funding, equipment, staffing, and course development and promotion. Section two deals with simulators and related training devices that are required to equip a stand-alone or institution-based centre. The features, strengths, and weaknesses of training devices are presented to help the reader find the appropriate simulator to fulfil their training requirements. There is a guide to producing scenarios and medical props that can enhance the training experience. The third section covers adult education, and it reviews the steps required to develop courses that comply with best practice in medical education. Teaching skills, facilitating problem-based learning, groups, and debriefing techniques are especially important to multidisciplinary skills centres that find themselves becoming a centre for medical education. The manual concludes with guides for the major specialties that use simulation, including military paediatrics, CPR, and medical response teams, obstetrics, and anesthesia.

Hyperthermia Beverley A. Britt, 2012-12-06 A HISTORY OF MALIGNANT HYPERTHERMIA Malignant hyperthermia MH is a hereditary disorder of muscle Undoubtedly individuals have possessed this trait since time immemorial However because the trait is usually only unmasked in the presence of potent inhalational anaesthetic agents or non depolarizing skeletal muscle relaxants the existence of malignant hyperthermia was not suspected until we after the dawn of the modern anaesthetic era In the early years of ether and chloroform anaesthesia monitoring was minimal Body temperature was never measured A finger on the pulse and observation of respirations and skin colour were the most that could be expected Death was not infrequent and usually unexplained 1 By the beginning of the twentieth century reports of fulminant fever and tachycardia rapid heart rate during or immediately after anaesthesia often ending in death were being described with increasing frequency in the medical literature 2 6 As a number of cases from New York had occurred during summer months they were initially thought to be a form of heat stroke due to overly hot operating theatres 2 6 However one enterprising anaesthetist 5 checked the weather reports for the days on which some of these so called heat strokes had occurred He found that on the days i n question the ambient 0 temperature had never been in excess of 72 F Environmental heat therefore could not have been a cause of at least some of these reactions
