CORN CHRONICLES

THE JOURNEY FROM PLATE TO POOP

How the Digestive System Works

When you eat, your food goes into your mouth. Your teeth and tongue help break the food into smaller pieces. Saliva in your mouth starts the process of digestion. Food then travels down your esophagus to your stomach. In your stomach, stomach acid and enzymes break the food into even smaller pieces. The food then moves into your small intestine, where most of the nutrients are absorbed. The remaining food moves into your large intestine, where water is absorbed. Finally, the waste is eliminated from your body through your rectum and anus.

Breaking Down is Hard to Do

It's not always easy to understand how your digestive system works. But knowing how it works can help you make better choices about what you eat. For example, eating a diet rich in fiber can help keep your digestive system healthy. Fiber is found in many fruits, vegetables, and grains. It helps move food through your digestive system and keeps your bowels regular. So, eat your veggies and stay healthy!

Let's Process This

Now that you know how your digestive system works, you can make better choices about what you eat. Remember, a healthy diet is one that is rich in fruits, vegetables, and whole grains. It also includes plenty of water. So, drink up and eat well! Your digestive system will thank you.
