

Activity A:Genotype and phenotypeGet the Gizmo ready:

- Select Natural selection.

Question: How are genes inherited and modified over many generations?

1. Observe: The fitness of an insect is a measure of how well it is adapted to its environment.

A. What is the initial Average fitness of these insects?

B. Click Play (▶), and observe the simulation for several generations. What occurs in each generation?

Half of each generation is devoured as it is born, but the other half keeps reproducing and the population rises for several generations.

C. Increase the Sim. speed by one level. Click Pause (⏸) after 30 generations. What is the Average fitness now?

2. Analyze: Set the Sim. speed to its slowest level. Click Play, and then Pause when the offspring appear. Choose a pair of parents in which both parents have a different color.

A. Move your cursor over a parent insect. The genes that control color make up an insect's genotype, while its actual color is its phenotype. Fill in the genotypes and phenotypes of each parent below.

Parent 1

Natural Selection J. Phil Gibson, Terri R. Gibson, 2009 In his groundbreaking book Natural Selection Charles Darwin explained his theory that evolution is driven by adaptation of species to their environmental surroundings From the tiniest microbe to the largest whale all organisms have changed over vast expanses of time due to the forces of natural selection This new title in the Science Foundations series provides an overview of the processes and causes that drive natural selection and the principles that explain how it operates using numerous diverse organisms as examples Natural Selection promotes a solid understanding of how organisms change over the course of generations and how current biodiversity came to be

Contributions to the Theory of Natural Selection Alfred Russel Wallace, 1871 Wallace noticed on expeditions to the Amazon and the Malay archipelago that mammals in Southeast Asia are more advanced than their Australian cousins His suggestion was that the two continents had split before the better adapted mammals had evolved in Asia The isolated Australian marsupials were able to thrive whilst those in Asia were driven to extinction by competition from more advanced mammals This led to his theory of natural selection which he presented to the Linnean Society in 1858 with Charles Darwin This volume reprints those papers presented to the Linnean Society

The Statistics of Natural Selection on Animal Populations Bryan F. J. Manly, 1985-09-19 In the concluding chapter of his famous book on the theory of evolution by natural selection Charles Darwin 1859 remarked that When the views entertained in this volume on the origin of species or when analogous views are generally admitted we can dimly foresee that there will be a considerable revolution in natural history This proved of course to be completely correct At present there is a great divergence of opinion about the general importance of natural selection in the evolutionary process

Nevertheless biologists are on the whole united in their acceptance of the potential power of selection in changing populations. Given this situation it is not surprising to find that many attempts to detect the effects of natural selection have been made since the time of Darwin. This area of study has been called ecological genetics. It involves the collection of data of various kinds and in many cases the development of special methods for analysing these data. This book is a summary of methods for data analysis concentrating on those that are applicable to animal populations particularly wild populations.

Coefficients of Natural Selection Laurence Martin Cook, 1971 Statistics of Natural Selection Bryan F. Manly, 1987-10-15
The study of evidence for natural selection. Mark-recapture experiments. Samples taken from a population within one generation. Comparison of live and dead animals. Complete counts of survivors. Evidence from the spatial distribution of a population. Gene frequency changes at a single genetic locus. Equilibrium gene frequencies at a single locus. Selection on quantitative variables. Further analyses using genetic data. Non-random mating and sexual selection. Concluding remarks.
