

MILLDESK HELP DESK SOFTWARE

Imagine increasing productivity and performance of your help desk and service desk team through smart, simple and straightforward processes. This is the main focus of Milldesk, a tool that explores the concepts of usability to ensure faster implementation and management of incidents.

The Milldesk is a software to manage and control your help desk, based on ITIL framework. It is a SaaS application, 100% web. It works with ticketing systems, SLA, more than 100 sorts of reports, knowledge base and more... (everything made for a better management and control).

Built upon these concepts, the experience of supporting clients all over the country and internationally enabled the creation of an intelligent tool that exceeds the expectations of different customer profiles.

Milldesk base technology guarantees greater security, flexibility and speed to meet customer demands.

HOW TO CHOOSE THE RIGHT HELP DESK SOFTWARE FOR YOUR COMPANY

Choosing the right IT help desk software for your company is a very important decision. Choosing the wrong solution can bring additional problems for you, your employees, frustrated customers and even lose potential sales. It's important to ensure that whatever solution you choose it meets your present and future needs.

The basic features you need to look at any help desk solution are identification and follow-up of the problem, knowledge base and communication.

Within the characteristics of "identification and follow-up" you need to include: the type of information you want to keep within the system about the client with the problem, how do you identify the problem within the help desk system, how you show the different stages of the solution the problem and how you manage the resolution.

Ideally the help desk software allows you to present the information in a way that makes easier to locate client related issues. It's important that you can find and open unsolved issues, solved issues, and be able to see the opening time of an incident of a specific client and to follow up the information.

The tickets (incidents) of your help desk will probably be stored in specific categories. If your product requires a login and password to use, then you will probably create a category called "forgot login" and another called "forgot password" from company time tickets.

Customer's problems do not remain in the same stage from start to finish, you need a way to identify the stages of the tickets for different issues. Some examples might be "Pending", "Waiting for Customer response", "Solved" or "Closed".

An important aspect of problem solving is the ability to get you into your current knowledge base for answers to frequently asked questions by customers, or similar solutions already resolved. Instead of wasting time solving an issue that someone has already solved in your company, you must be able to quickly search for opened and closed tickets in your help desk to find solutions and apply them to your current ticket.

The help desk software should contain a built-in communication tool, with the possibility of integration with the email and/or video conferencing.

Stay away from help desk solutions that you need to copy information from a ticket and paste into a separate email. Integration with email is key.

A good help desk software must also provide a way to document information on a ticket, and pass the ticket to another person who can help find a better solution.
