 Simons,2020-02-05 The subject of driverless and even ownerless cars has the potential to be the most disruptive technology for real estate land use and parking since the invention of the elevator This book includes new research and economic analysis plus a thorough review of the current literature to pose and attempt to answer a number of important questions about the effect that driverless vehicles may have on land use in the United States especially on parking Simons outlines the history of disruptive technologies in transport and real estate before examining how the predicted changes brought in by the adoption of driverless technologies and decline in car ownership will affect our urban areas What could we do with all the parking areas in our cities and our homes and institutional buildings that may no longer be required Can they be sustainably repurposed Will self driving cars become like horses used only by hobbyists for recreation and sport While the focus is on parking the book also contains the views of real estate economists architects and policymakers and is essential reading for
