

REFLECTIVE JOURNAL

The main aim of this journal is to keep a record of my thoughts, notes, reflections and questions about this subject, and some implementation activities related to this subject that I have carried out in my classes. All the information we can find in this journal is connected, however I have decided to classify them by topics.

❖ Assessment & Evaluation:

I would like to center this reflection on my personal opinion about the fact of assessing and being assessed: how people feel, if they like or not and why, etc.

In my opinion the feeling people have when we are assessed changes through the years and it different depending on the kind you are. When children are at school they feel that assessment is something compulsory for them, but they do not really feel the pressure that, for example, students at high school feel because they know that they have to achieve the goals and the targets and unless they do it, they will not promote. On the other hand, we can think of assessment from the teachers' or parents' perspective. If we focus on parents' perspective, assessment is something good because it facilitates them the fact of knowing that their children are working at school and if they are truly learning or not. Now, I will focus on teachers' perspective. For teachers assessment is something great because it gives information about students and their progress in the learning process, about our own job (because we are assessed by others teachers of self-assessment) and information about the quality of the tools we use in our classes.

❖ Formative & Summative Assessment:

I would like to mention that, before studying this unit it was difficult for me to understand the difference between formative and summative assessment. However, now, I am able to distinguish them and that's why I would like to refers on these terms in the following lines. After each explanation, I will give you some examples of how I use each of the assessments with my students.

- Formative assessment provides explicit feedback to both, teacher and students, in order to improve the teaching-learning process, it means, the

Leadership Resilience Ginger Charles, 2016-04-22 Leadership is demanding and challenging How do leaders cope How do they remain fit and strong and thrive The authors of Leadership Resilience a business school academic and a police officer suggest that many challenges faced by leaders are similar to the challenges experienced by police officers The isolation the pressure not to show personal emotions the expectation that they will deal effectively with confused frustrated and angry people and that they can deal with delivering bad news all contribute to the pressures bearing on leaders and police officers everywhere The authors argue that these challenges are more pronounced in policing and so more readily identifiable than in other leadership situations They explore challenges experienced by police officers look at how they cope with them and draw lessons for those undertaking leadership roles more generally Leadership Resilience provides accounts from police officers in their own words of difficult experiences they encounter They describe their feelings about what was important and how they coped with it Each account is followed by an analysis highlighting what is discussed and not discussed in the accounts and identifying lessons that can be drawn by leaders in other situations All is presented so that it is relevant to different cultures demanding different styles of leadership Analysis of the engaging experiences featured will help leaders struggling with the gap between leadership education and capability and the demands made of them to survive and thrive while maintaining their physical mental emotional and spiritual health

Leadership and Learning Marlene Morrison, 2009-07-01 This proposal is for a book about pedagogical leadership that draws upon an extensive literature base as well as empirical research by the author in order to examine forms of leadership and management that promote and instill education for learning and social justice Its starting points are to restore and elevate social and moral purpose in leadership as first order constructs that have theoretical and practical implications for existing and potential leader educators This is not necessarily an easy thing to do Asking educators and researchers of education leadership to define what they consider to be the core moral values underpinning leadership in educational settings usually results in some fairly bland if fundamentally important statements about putting learners at the heart of leadership praxis especially that which occurs in educational settings In practice numerous organisational mission statements attest to this rhetorical conviction Yet it is current policy contexts that place relations between leaders teachers and learners in contradictory moral positions Drives to improve student performance through increased competition in the market place intensified procedures for monitoring and evaluation and frenetic commitments to change as overarching leadership mantras have relegated Sergiovanni's 1998 definition of pedagogical leadership that invests in capacity building by developing social and academic capital for students and intellectual capital for teachers as second even third order constructs This book intends to reverse the process and in doing so it will relegate to second order and by lively debate and illustrative vignettes many though not all of the hegemonic constructs that are prevalent in current managerial times This book will therefore define and challenge a paradox as governments express commitment to an educational settlement that minimises exclusion widens participation and promotes active citizenship the much heralded vanguards of that settlement leaders and managers are being enjoined to reduce their thinking and action to technicist manoeuvres Grace 2000 236 in which aspirations towards social justice can become more distant strangely exotic even in their expression As importantly such technical manoeuvring is not accompanied by a reduction in leadership and management tasks and responsibilities As more is demanded of organizations and their leaders in terms of responsibilities for learning in areas of health sexuality drug awareness physical exercise and nutrition citizenship work experience race equality and skills in familial and social caring questions arise about the extent to which social justice constitutes a wide umbrella under which such interests might shelter or whether social justice is to be considered separately with attendant dangers to be seen as add on and therefore potentially marginalized or distinct from the total enterprise that constitutes education and learning

Leadership and Management in the Early Years Caroline Jones,Linda Pound,2008-03-16 Early childhood practitioners are often reluctant to see themselves as leaders and managers However all those who work with young children and their families whatever their level of experience and competence have to undertake both of these roles on a daily basis This book encourages practitioners to recognise their active involvement in leadership and management in relation to their work as team leader or team member and in their work with parents and other professionals to ensure appropriate and effective provision for young children The authors identify a number of key principles involved in effective early years leadership and management which focus on the idea that Leadership is about influencing others to improve and enhance children s care learning and development Leadership is only effective if it develops the leadership of others by supporting a team or group in meeting their declared aims or vision Leadership is ultimately distributed shared and dispersed in early childhood settings These principles are supported by a detailed exploration of the statutory demands made on practitioners working with young children and their families and reference to relevant literature drawn from both early childhood studies and leadership theories As well as providing guidance on the roles responsibilities and tasks facing early childhood leaders the book features a number of case studies and practical tasks giving life to concepts and ideas and enabling readers to apply theories and policies to their own work settings Additional activities at the end of each chapter further support practitioners in fulfilling their leadership and management roles in practice Leadership and Management in the Early Years is an essential text for early years and early childhood studies students as well as practitioners particularly those who are aiming for Early Years Professional Status
