through violence and isolation or defensive paeans to their potential as serious cultural works In How to Do Things with Videogames Ian Bogost contends that such generalizations obscure the limitless possibilities offered by the medium's ability to create complex simulated realities Bogost a leading scholar of videogames and an award winning game designer explores the many ways computer games are used today documenting important historical and cultural events educating both children and adults promoting commercial products and serving as platforms for art pornography exercise relaxation pranks and politics Examining these applications in a series of short inviting and provocative essays he argues that together they make the medium broader richer and more relevant to a wider audience Bogost concludes that as videogames become ever more enmeshed with contemporary life the idea of gamers as social identities will become obsolete giving rise to gaming by the masses But until games are understood to have valid applications across the cultural spectrum their true potential will remain unrealized How to Do Things with Videogames offers a fresh starting point to more fully consider games progress today and promise for the future Torque ,2008-01 Singapore's best homegrown car magazine with an editorial dream team driving it We fuel the need for speed Autocar ,2005 Torque ,2008-02 Singapore's best homegrown car magazine with an editorial dream team driving it We fuel the need for speed Torque ,2008-07 Singapore's best homegrown car magazine with an editorial dream team driving it We fuel the need for speed
