Military Skills Development System 2016 Application Form:

South Africa's Post-Apartheid Military Lindy Heineken, 2020-01-01 This timely book examines how the South African National Defence Force has adapted to the country's new security political and social environment since 1994. In South Africa's changed political state, how has civilian control of the military been implemented and what does this mean for defence in a democracy? This book presents an overview of the security environment, how the mission focus of the military has changed and the implications for force procurement, force preparation, force employment and force sustainability. The author addresses other issues such as the effect of integrating former revolutionary soldiers into a professional armed force, the effect of affirmative action on meritocracy, recruitment and retention, military veterans looking at the difficulties they face in reintegrating back into society and finding gainful employment, gender equality and mainstreaming the rise of military unions and why a confrontational instead of a more corporatist approach to labour relations has emerged. HIV/AIDS and the consequences this holds for the military in terms of its operational effectiveness. In closing, the author highlights key events that have caused the SANDF to become lost in transition and transformation, spelling out some lessons learned. The conclusions she draws are pertinent for the future of defence security and civil-military relations of countries around the world.

Handbook of Higher Education in the Asia-Pacific Region Devesh Kapur, Lily Kong, Florence Lo, David M.

Malone, 2023-01-20 Since the turn of the millennium it has become clear that the Asia Pacific Region is economically the fastest growing continent in the world and is likely to remain so for some time despite the setbacks of the COVID-19 pandemic. Asia Pacific's share of the world's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) doubled from 15 per cent to 30 per cent between 1970 and 2017 and is projected to account for half of global GDP by 2050. With South East and South Asia also growing rapidly with over half the world's population and three of the world's five largest economies, Asia is soon poised to home half of the world's middle class, a class that is both the driver and the product of higher education. The quality of a country's system of higher education may be seen both as a gauge of its current level of national development as well as of its future economic prospects. It is therefore natural that the putative Asian Century should generate interest in the region's higher education systems which on the one hand share common characteristics: a fixation with credentials and engineering, high technology especially among male students and business degrees while at the same time are also highly differentiated, not only across countries but also within. As such, a better understanding of higher education achievements, failings, potential and structural limitations in the Asia Pacific Region is imperative. This handbook presents a number of significant country case studies and documents cross-cutting trends relating to, among other things, the trilemma faced by governments juggling competing claims of access, accessible cost and quality, the balance between teaching and research, the links between labour markets demand and higher education supply preferred fields of study and their consequences the rise of the research university in Asia the lure of institutions of international reputation within the region new education technologies and their effects and trends in government policy within the wider region and sub regions High Performance Cognition:

INSCOM Journal ,1993 Open Participatory Security Jesse Paul Lehrke, 2017-08-15 Our modern security systems have recently come under a lot of criticism as too bureaucratic and unadaptable too secretive and untrustworthy and too obsessed with information technology rather than human needs Yet listing failures is easy security is never perfect The question is why current approaches fail and whether there are viable alternatives The root of their shortcomings is in the interaction of the very pillars of our security system in the contemporary context While our enemies have adopted the technologies of the Information Age changing how they organize and fight these same technologies have only created more vulnerabilities for states Governments have been generally unwilling to maximize their use of these technologies because it would require the wider release of information and the opening of organizational structures to include society in security making Yet countering diffuse modern threats striking deep into our states and across our economies requires mobilizing the diffuse skills and variation of modern society Open approaches for mobilizing participation and coproduction have the capabilities needed to improve contemporary security policy making problem solving and provision Moreover open participatory security can be effective not only for technical security but also for restoring trust among the citizens and rebuilding the legitimacy of the state
