

Ch 6 Answers to End-of-Chapter Questions

Multiple-Choice and Matching Question answers appear in Appendix II of the main text.

Short Answer Essay Questions

15. Cartilage has greater resilience than bone because its matrix lacks the bone salts found in bone tissue. Regeneration is much faster and more complete in bone tissue because it has a dense network of canaliculi throughout the matrix for nutrient delivery, compared to cartilage, which only receives nutrients via diffusion from blood vessels that lie external to the cartilage. (pp. 174, 181)
16.
  - a. In endochondral ossification, a bony collar is laid down around the diaphysis of the hyaline cartilage model.
  - b. Nutrient delivery to the cartilage in the center of the diaphysis is hindered, causing calcification and deterioration of the cartilage matrix.
  - c. The periosteal bud invades the newly formed cavities in the cartilage, and spongy bone forms.
  - d. Bone matrix deposition progresses outward from the ossification center: deterioration of bone matrix in the center of the diaphysis forms a medullary cavity.
  - e. Secondary ossification centers form at the epiphyses, completing bone deposition at the ends of the bone, leaving only articular cartilage and epiphyseal plates. (pp. 183–184)
17. Perforating canals radiate throughout the bone matrix, linking the central canal, periosteum, and all lamellae. Canaliculi interconnect all lacunae, allowing transfer of nutrients and wastes between the blood and osteocytes. (p. 181)
18. The increase in thickness of compact bone on its superficial face is counteracted by the resorption of bone by osteoclasts on its internal surface. (p. 187)
19. In an adult bone, new bone tissue is formed when osteoblasts deposit new bone matrix, forming an osteoid seam, a layer of unmineralized bone matrix. A calcification front, next to the older, mineralized bone, forms as new matrix becomes mineralized. Important to this calcification are levels of calcium and phosphate, and functional proteins that guide the process. (p. 187)
20. Two control loops regulate bone remodeling. A hormonal mechanism involving PTH that maintains blood  $\text{Ca}^{2+}$  promotes increased breakdown of bone matrix, while mechanical force acting on the skeleton promotes increased deposition of minerals in bone matrix. Bones would tend to lose mass and density under the influence of PTH, while they would gain mass and density if stress on the bone increased. (pp. 187–188) 21.
  - a. Skeletal mass increases the most during the first decade of life, and begins to decline during the fourth decade of life. (p. 193)
  - b. Elderly people usually experience bone loss, osteoporosis, and an increasing lack of blood supply, resulting in bones that are more prone to fracture. (p. 194)
