Ethics Across the Curriculum—Pedagogical Perspectives Elaine E. Englehardt,Michael S. Pritchard,2018-05-08 This book features articles by more than twenty experienced teachers of ethics who are committed to the idea that ethics can and should be taught virtually anywhere in the education curriculum They explore a variety of ways in which this might best be done Traditionally confined largely to programs in philosophy and religion the teaching of ethics has in recent decades spread across the curriculum education The contributors to this book discuss the rationale for supporting such efforts the variety of challenges these efforts face and the sorts of benefits faculty and students who participate in ethics across the curriculum endeavors can expect An overriding theme of this book is that the teaching of ethics should not be restricted to one or two courses in philosophy or religion programs but rather be addressed wherever relevant anywhere in the curriculum For example accredited engineering programs are expected to ensure that their students are introduced to the ethical dimensions of engineering This can involve consideration of ethical issues within particular areas of engineering e g civil mechanical electrical chemical as distinctive segments of certain courses e g those that focus on design problems or as a full semester course in ethics in engineering Similar approaches can be taken in nursing medicine law social work psychology accountancy management and so on That is some emphasis on ethics can be expected to be found in broad range of academic disciplines However many ethical issues require careful attention from the perspectives of several disciplines at once and in ways that require their joining hands Recognizing that adequately addressing many ethical issues may require the inclusion of perspectives from a variety of disciplines makes apparent the need for effective communication and reflection across disciplines not simply within them This in turn suggests that faculty and their students can benefit from special programs that are designed to include participants from a variety of disciplines Such programs will be a central feature of this book Although some differences might arise in how such issues might best be discussed across different parts of the curriculum these discussions might be joined in ways that help students faculty administrators and the wider public better appreciate their shared ethical ground

Paths to Teaching the Holocaust Tibbi Dubois, 2008-01-01 Paths to Teaching the Holocaust edited by Tibbi Dubois is an important new book It offers contributions by childhood middle and secondary teacher educators from various regions and universities in the continental United States The array of material is a strength of this unique book Some contributors write about ways in which they infuse existing courses with Holocaust materials while others focus on where and when to begin the education of their students with respect to genocide Curriculum and instruction are examined from the perspective of existing research Preparing oneself to teach the material and personal teaching style are presented in ways that will be helpful both to new and to experienced teachers and those interested in the kinds of questions embedded in this material Educators and others will see how events focused upon in the Holocaust are connected to violations of human rights and social justice committed during the period of National Socialism Readers are reminded of the approximate nature of knowledge when it is not born of lived experience and are invited to raise questions about the Holocaust and other genocides The varied nature of the chapters offers a platform for engaging in discourse likely to pique the interest of people who have limited experience with the topic and of those whose knowledge may be rich and of long standing Teachers often seek to bridge the gap between theory and practice and will find the References of each writer an invaluable resource The contents of Paths to Teaching the Holocaust will be useful to educators and others concerned with oppression human rights and social justice
