Development Management of Transforming Economies Fabiana Sciarelli, Azzurra Rinaldi, 2016-12-14 This insightful book offers a new and innovative tool in the study of development The authors propose The Overall Development Model which provides a strategy for long term sustainable and adaptable development for countries around the globe Starting with a comprehensive study into what development is and how it is achieved Development Management of Transforming Economies critically analyzes current development schemes within transforming economies and examines their various actors both international and local public and private It examines the implementation of health education and economic strategies of countries in Africa and Asia that have either undergone a development process experienced slow but steady progress or are just beginning to pursue a development strategy In considering human development as a whole the authors assert a new method of development that includes the developing population and highlights the need for countries to define their own unique development process

to have systematically taken on the topic of IT and development In this timely book he undertakes a methodological critique of prominent topics in the debate Challenging the existing literature by international and governmental institutions the book looks not only at the digital divide but also at issues such as digital preparedness leapfrogging and low cost computers James also raises important issues which have been largely neglected in the literature such as the implications for poverty in developing countries and the macroeconomics of mobile phones The book argues that benefits from IT are captured in a different form in developing as opposed to developed countries In the latter gains come from technology ownership and use whereas in the former benefits cannot be captured as much in this way because ownership is more limited Interestingly the author shows that developing countries have responded to this distinction with a series of local innovations which are often low cost and pro poor This finding contradicts the widely held view that poor countries are unable to generate major innovations within their own borders Accessible and clearly written this book will be of great interest to scholars of development economics and development studies and is relevant to both policy makers and academics

Africa 2.0 Russell Southwood,2022-07-12 Africa wired up provides an important history of how two technologies mobile calling and internet were made available to millions of Sub Saharan Africans and the impact they have had on their lives The book deals with the political challenges of liberalization and privatization that needed to be in place to get these technologies built It analyses how the mobile phone fundamentally changed communications in Sub Saharan Africa and the ways Africans have made these technologies part of their lives It examines critically the technologies impact on development practices and the key role development actors played in accelerating things like regulatory reform fibre roll out and mobile money The book considers how corruption in the industry is a prism through which patronage relationships in Government can be understood The arrival of a start up ecosystem has the potential to break these relationships and offer a new wave of investment opportunities The author seeks to go beyond the hype to make a provisional assessment of the kinds of changes that have happened over three decades It examines how and why these technologies became transformative and seem to have opened out a very different future for Sub Saharan Africa

African Industrial Development and European Union

Co-operation Francis Matambalya, 2014-08-27 Of the 54 African states only South Africa is categorised by the United Nations Industrial Development Organization UNIDO amongst industrialised countries The economic activities in Africa are still dominated by the production and trade of agricultural and mineral commodities This situation is in spite of the longstanding Africa European Union EU co operation which intends among other things to support Africa s industrialisation endeavours Imperatively a long road to substantive levels of industrialisation still lies ahead of most African countries This raises the question as to what role the international community could and should play in the twenty first century to provide the support needed to expedite Africa s industrial transformation This book argues that to supplement the initiatives of each African country international partnerships of both a North South and South South nature will serve better purposes if they are leveraged to develop productive capacities in African economies In order to enable the African countries to leverage their traditional partnership with the EU for industrialisation a paradigm shift is obligatory A feasible model should emulate the Japanese led flying geese model and the Chinese led bamboo capitalism model
