on the different systems namely PID proportional integral derivative LQR linear quadratic regulator respectively then comparison was done between their simulation results and performance assessment for the controllers simulation results was conducted and showed a significant enhancement in isolating the vibrations of the engine from the car body

Vibration isolation in the engine compartment is a challenging design problem for all transportation means particularly in the automotive industry to attain better ride quality improved road handling and longer engine parts life Given the emergence of new vehicles with more stringent performance characteristics engine vibration isolation has become a more demanding issue This thesis focuses on the modelling development and experimental analysis of two active and semi active engine mounts designed specifically to address the isolation problem of Variable Displacement Engines VDE It has been shown however that the designed mounts are flexible enough to fulfil the isolation requirements of other engine types as well Both proposed mounts are made by adding retrofitable parts to the conventionally available hydraulic engine mounts The promising performance of the fabricated mounts in addition to their minimal cost fail safety and low energy consumption makes them appealing solutions for the auto industry
