VOCATIONAL ANALYSIS

The Occupational Analysis provides a content map¹ for a particular group for consideration. Based on major occupational categories suggested by the US Department of Labor in writing its Dictionary of Occupational Titles, these groups are ranked from highest to lowest potential. The ranking is obtained by comparing the individual's score to his/her general population. Each major occupational area has titles that combine specific occupational titles which are also ranked to identify occupational potential. This may be an occupational title with a high rating while the vocational heading has a low rating, or vice versa. Group vocational and occupational ratings in the same group facilitate the comparison.
