D. Walker,D. Christopher Brooks,Kem Saichaie,Christina I. Petersen,2023-07-03 While Active Learning Classrooms or ALCs offer rich new environments for learning they present many new challenges to faculty because among other things they eliminate the room s central focal point and disrupt the conventional seating plan to which faculty and students have become accustomed The importance of learning how to use these classrooms well and to capitalize on their special features is paramount The potential they represent can be realized only when they facilitate improved learning outcomes and engage students in the learning process in a manner different from traditional classrooms and lecture halls This book provides an introduction to ALCs briefly covering their history and then synthesizing the research on these spaces to provide faculty with empirically based practical guidance on how to use these unfamiliar spaces effectively Among the questions this book addresses are How can instructors mitigate the apparent lack of a central focal point in the space What types of learning activities work well in the ALCs and take advantage of the affordances of the room How can teachers address familiar classroom management challenges in these unfamiliar spaces If assessment and rapid feedback are critical in active learning how do they work in a room filled with circular tables and no central focus point How do instructors balance group learning with the needs of the larger class How can students be held accountable when many will necessarily have their backs facing the instructor How can instructors evaluate the effectiveness of their teaching in these spaces This book is intended for faculty preparing to teach in or already working in this new classroom environment for administrators planning to create ALCs or experimenting with provisionally designed rooms and for faculty developers helping teachers transition to using these new spaces Focus on Earth Science, 2001 explained by a general lack of confidence in this key area and partly by widespread media and political criticism of the teaching of literacy. It is also because it is often difficult for a student to make the connection between observation of key teaching strategies and his or her own personal practice.

English for Academic and Specific Purposes in the Classroom Rosmawati, Marjolijn Verspoor, 2025-05-22 This volume showcases curriculum designs, instructional strategies, classroom challenges, and assessment practices in courses around the world introduced to meet the demand for English language skills for academic EAP or specific purposes ESP in higher education settings. Particularly in English as a medium of instruction (EMI) institutions, the courses are frequently part of the curriculum regardless of discipline or specialization. Given the prevalence of such courses, it is important to understand how they are implemented. Many theories and models have inspired and underpinned these courses, including genre-based instruction, Writing in the Disciplines, Systemic Functional Linguistics, the academic literacies model, and translanguaging. Often these are combined with various pedagogical approaches such as constructive alignment, flipped learning, learning-oriented assessment, Galperin's theory of Systematic Formation of Mental Actions (SFMA), the study skills models, pedagogical cultural historical activity theory, and the TESOL teaching learning cycle. This book showcases how these are implemented in EAP/ESP classrooms. This volume gives a voice to instructors whose experience in real-life classrooms is invaluable to inform research and policies, as well as to refine theories. It serves as a venue for conversation among the community of practitioners and researchers of applied linguistics and language teaching.
