

⇒ Threshing - After harvesting the seed grains are beaten so that they get separated from its outer covering (chaff). This process is called threshing. It is done with the machine called combine or thresher.

⇒ Winnowing - After threshing, the seed grains are separated from chaff and hay with the help of wind called winnowing. The grains are made to fall from a height in blowing wind. The grains, being heavy falls straight to the ground and chaff and hay being much lighter are carried some distance away by the wind.

Storage of Food Grains:

- After harvesting, it is important to store the food grains properly.
- The harvested grains have more moisture so they are dried properly in Sun to remove moisture, and then they are stored.
- Farmers stores grains in jute bags and metallic bins. Dried Neem leaves are used to store food grains at home. It protects the grains from insects and micro-organisms.
- Large scale storage of grains is done in Silos and Granaries to protect them from pests like rats and insects. Chemical treatment may also be given to protect from microorganisms.
