

Rule	Explanation
1. Mind your p's and q's	a. Need to know and tell the Difference (don't mix them up) between allele and genotype frequencies b. Single letters such as p, q, r, etc. represent allele frequencies, remember there could be more than 2 alleles for a gene c. Allele frequency = # of a given allele / total number of alleles in the pop. d. Any letter that is not a single letter (p^2, q^2, r^2, $2pq$, etc.) represents genotype frequency = # of individuals with this phenotype / total # of individuals. e. You can "count" the alleles if you know the number of individuals with a given genotype.
2. Number of individuals does not equal number of alleles - relates to rule #1	Each individual has 2 alleles for any given gene, one from each parent - total number of alleles in a population is number of individuals \times 2
3. NEVER , ever use the H-W equation to solve a problem, UNLESS you are specifically told that the population is in H-W equilibrium. You can not use the equation unless you know it applies.	If the population is evolving, the equation does not apply. Remember, you cannot assume that the population is in equilibrium if: 1) the population is small; 2) there is selection (human or natural); 3) migration or 4) mutations What this means is that if you know the frequency of the homozygous recessive (or any other genotype) you CAN NOT use q^2 (or any other like p^2 or $2pq$) to determine allele frequencies. You MUST count alleles to get allele frequencies.
4. If you are told that the population is in H-W equilibrium, try to find allele frequencies first and always start with the recessive individuals	If you are given the number of individuals with particular phenotypes, you can only be sure of the genotype of the individuals with the recessive phenotype, so start figuring out q^2 and q before anything else. You can always use the principle that allele frequencies have to add up to 1 ($p + q + \dots = 1$) Start with the recessive phenotype \rightarrow find $q^2 \rightarrow$ find q \rightarrow find p - you are ready to solve any problem
5. You don't need to use the H-W equation (unless you are	You can always "count" alleles. Try to find the shortest route to solving the problem
