

Pyramid of Energy Packet

Very important to the understanding of energy is the fact that energy is always conserved. It can be neither created nor destroyed, only transformed from one form to another.

Energy flows through an ecosystem from a source of energy (usually sunlight) through various levels of organisms. The flow of energy is always one-way, and it is always being transformed from one form to another. For example, energy from the sun is captured by producers (plants) and transformed into chemical energy (sugar) through the process of photosynthesis. This energy is then passed on to consumers (animals) through feeding. The energy is eventually lost from the system as heat.
