Research in Education, 1968-08 Advocacy and Change in International Organizations Kseniya Oksamytna, 2023-09-14 How do international organizations change Many organizations expand into new areas or abandon programmes of work Advocacy and Change in International Organizations argues that they do so not only at the collective direction of member states Advocacy is a crucial but overlooked source of change in international organizations Different actors can advocate for change national diplomats international bureaucrats external experts or civil society activists They can use one of three advocacy strategies social pressure persuasion and authority talk The success of each strategy depends on the presence of favourable conditions related to characteristics of advocates targets issues and context Institutionalization of new issues in international organizations as a multi stage process often accompanied by contestation This book demonstrates how the advocacy focused framework explains the origins of three workstreams of contemporary UN peacekeeping operations communication protection and reconstruction The issue of strategic communications was promoted by UN officials through the strategy of persuasion Protection of civilians emerged due to a partially successful social influence campaign by a coalition of elected Security Council members and a subsequent and successful persuasion efforts by Canada Quick impact projects entered peacekeepers practice as the result of authority talk by an expert panel The three issues illustrate the diversity of pathways to change in international organizations representing the top down bottom up and outside in pathways Moreover they have achieved different degrees of institutionalization in UN s policies structures and frameworks protection of civilians is the most institutionalized as evidenced by measures to hold peacekeepers accountable for non implementation while quick impact projects are the least institutionalized
