

The background of the image shows several glasses of craft beer. In the foreground, a tall glass of amber beer with a thick head of foam is prominent. Behind it, other glasses contain darker beers, some with lighter foam, and one glass on the right contains a very dark, possibly black, beer. The glasses are set against a dark, blurred background.

together plus the equipment you'll need and how to set it up in your own home. Soon you will understand the intricacies of full mash brewing and be well on your way to making beers you can be proud of. And the aim is to encourage you to experiment, not reproduce beers you have enjoyed in the past, but to master the basic types of beer, then go on to produce your own. It's how some of the best microbreweries started, so why not follow their lead? Also included is advice from people who have started their own breweries where they share a few secrets that will help you along the way. Dave Law has been at the forefront of the fight against tasteless mass-produced beer, refusing to bow down to the bland and insisting on only serving beers produced by the finest microbreweries at his two London pubs. His passion for a well-made beer knows no bounds and shows in his own exquisite brews. A firm advocate of the self-sufficient lifestyle, Beshlie Grimes has been making beers, wines, and other country drinks on her farm for family and friends for as long as she can remember.
