Advances in Human Genetics 1 Harry Harris, 2012-12-06 During the last few years the science of human genetics has been expanding almost explosively Original papers dealing with different aspects of the subject are appearing at an increasingly rapid rate in a very wide range of journals and it becomes more and more difficult for the geneticist and virtually impossible for the non geneticist to keep track of the developments Furthermore new observations and discoveries relevant to an overall understanding of the subject result from investigations using very diverse techniques and methodologies and originating in a variety of different disciplines Thus investigations in such various fields as enzymology immunology protein chemistry cytology pediatrics neurology internal medicine anthropology and mathematical and statistical genetics to name but a few have each contributed results and ideas of general significance to the study of human genetics Not surprisingly it is often difficult for workers in one branch of the subject to assess and assimilate findings made in another This can be a serious limiting factor on the rate of progress Thus there appears to be a real need for critical review articles which summarize the positions reached in different areas and it is hoped that Advances in Human Genetics will help to meet this requirement Each of the contributors has been asked to write an account of the position that has been reached in the investigations of a specific topic in one of the branches of human genetics
