Marines and you'll naturally think of the peerless ground force that has always bravely answered America's call to arms. But the Marines also have an air arm with a tradition every bit as proud and legendary as the ground infantry they support. Now military historian Robert F. Dorr presents the first fully illustrated oral history of the Marine Air Wing and gives the Flying Leathernecks the recognition they deserve. When America entered World War I in 1917, the Marine Air Wing had only thirty-five aviators. During World War II, it expanded to sixty-one squadrons, twenty with at least one flying ace and over 10,000 pilots. Marine Air is a long overdue illustrated history filled with the Flying Leathernecks' own words and packed with photographs of the few, the proud of the skies and of their unwavering commitment to protecting their comrades on the ground and to defending the country they have never let down, no matter what the odds.

Student's Class-book of Elocution Dominic Barthel, 1927 Douglas D-558 Peter E. Davies, 2019-10-31 The six Douglas D-558 research aircraft built as two variants were produced for a US Navy and NACA collaborative project to investigate flight in the high subsonic and supersonic regimes and to develop means of coping with the dangerous phenomena of compressibility and pitch-up, which had caused many accidents to early jets. Wind tunnels could not provide the necessary data, so pilots had to risk their safety in experimental aircraft which, for their time, achieved phenomenal performance. Both series of D-558 were well designed, strong and efficient aircraft which enabled test pilots to tackle the unknown in comparative safety. Though delayed by their innovative but troublesome power plants and limited by the cost of their air-launched sorties, they went well beyond their original Mach 1 speed objective and continued to generate information that provided design solutions for a whole generation of supersonic combat aircraft. Although the final stage of the D-55 programme, the USN's militarized D-558-3 never happened, the Navy was able to apply the lessons of the programme to its much more practical combat types such as the F8U Crusader and F3H Demon. Supported by full-colour artwork including three-view plates of the two D-558 models and a technical view of the D-2 cockpit, this authoritative text offers a comprehensive guide to the record-breaking Navy research craft.
